DETROIT BLAST INJURES 50 AND RUINS BUILDING

Structures Are Shaken for Blocks Around; Firemen Dig In.

POLICE ARREST TWO AS CASE WITNESSES

Wife of Owner, Seized, Says She Doesn't Know Origin of Explosion.

Detroit, April 16 (A.P.).—Fifty persons were injured, 28 of them seriously enough to require hospital treatment, when an explosion demolished a two-story brick building on the edge of the business district tonight, shaking buildings for blocks around.

Police of the arson squad, who said they found indications that the blast was caused by gasoline, held Mrs. Florence Peizzano, 35, wife of Anthony Peizzano, the owner, and Tom Constantine, 39, found in front of the building, as police witnesses.

Digging Into Ruins.

As soon as the ruins cooled, firemen began digging into them in search of bodies, but had found none late tonight. They said no one in the building, which was used as a rooming house, could have survived the blast.

When dust and smoke from the explosion cleared away, more than a score of persons were sitting or lying in the debris-littered street. They had been struck by flying glass, felled by bricks or knocked down by the force of the blast. Police estimated that as many more were nicked by glass from broken windows or struck by falling plaster in adjacent buildings, but did not seek hospital treatment.

Nearby Buildings Shaken.

Police headquarters, Receiving Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital, all nearby, were shaken as if by an earthquake. A coffee shop next door was so badly damaged that firemen said it might have to be razed.

Mrs. Peizzano, found late tonight, said her husband left several days ago for Buffalo, N. Y., and New York City, where he owns property. She said she left the house sometime before the explosion and knew nothing of its origin.

Gangsters Warned To Let Beer Alone

Cummings Says U. S. Will Bend Every Effort to Guard Legal Trade.

Stamford, Conn., April 16 (U.P.).—The Federal Government is determined to keep the beer business clear of racketeer influence, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said here today.

Efforts of beer racketeers to "chisel in" on the present flood of money which is being spent for beer in the metropolitan centers of the United States will be opposed with every governmental resource, Cummings said.

Every case in which it appears that gangsters have made an attempt to get into the legitimate beer trade will be investigated and prosecuted with the utmost relentlessness, he said.

Macon Flight Delayed Again by Bad Weather

Akron, Ohio, April 16 (A.P.).—Further postponement of the initial test flight of the U. S. S. Macon was announced tonight by Capt. Alger H. Dresel, skipper of the Navy air cruiser.

A flight early tomorrow morning had been planned, but was called off when weather charts showed unfavorable flying conditions.

FATAL FALL FOILS LAW

Alleged Radio Operator for Rum Ring Dies Trying to Escape.

New York, April 16 (A.P.).—While Justice Department agents and detectives rapped on his door, Edward Horstman, 35, alleged wireless operator for a liquor syndicate in Charleston, S. C., tumbled eight stories to death today trying to escape by a window.

Apparently in preparation for unwelcome visitors, Horstman had knotted several sheets together and tied one end of them to the radiator in his hotel room. He hoped to lower himself to the roof of an adjoining building three stories below, to which he already had tossed a .38-caliber revolver and a .32-caliber automatic.

Just as the authorities broke down his door, however, his improvised rope parted and he plunged to death between the buildings.

It was the same hotel in which Jack "Legs" Diamond was critically shot October 12, 1930, by gunmen who never have been caught.

In Horstman's room was a blonde woman dressed in green, who identified herself as Peggy Clark, a waitress. She said she had met Horstman in a night club several weeks ago, but knew little about him. She was released after being questioned.

Horstman was indicted in Charleston for liquor smuggling, and Samuel Gershon, Department of Justice agent of Charleston, came here about a week ago with a warrant for his arrest. Two agents were assigned to arrest him, and it was they and two city detectives who trailed him to the hotel room.

Gershon said he had been after the fugitive continuously for three days and nights.

In Horstman's room was a case of wires, insulators, switches and tools and a wireless code book. The Department of Justice agents said they believed Horstman was the wireless operator for the liquor smuggling ring, but had no details of his alleged activities.

Horstman also had an elaborate wardrobe of a dozen suits, most of them new; ten costly hats and other clothes. Two gallon jugs of liquor were on a table.

Horstman was said by police to have been known in the white belt here as "Big Eddie," where he apparently had the reputation of being a big liquor runner. He had no police record here, but he was arrested in West Hoboken, N. J., in 1924, for illegal possession of a revolver.

OTTAWA PACTS FELT AT STAKE IN PARLEY

MacDonald's Acts Will Be Closely Watched by Friends of Empire.

London, April 16 (A.P.).—Advocates of empire development will watch closely at the meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald at the White House the coming week-end for possible effects on the Ottawa agreements, the new economic anchor of British imperialism.

The British prime minister intends to make no agreements and sign no pacts at the White House fireside, but will discuss the broad aspects of economic and political policy.

One of the most important of these subjects will be the general problem of tarriffs as barriers to world trade.

There is no likelihood that Britain's spokesman will pledge this country to return to its forsaken historic position of a free-trade nation.

On the question of high tariff policy, however, or regarding a low tariff policy, Mr. MacDonald has his government's authority to declare in favor of low tariffs.

The prime minister, when he sailed for Washington Saturday on the Berengaria, expressed the hope his discussions with President Roosevelt would result in new ways for cooperating in the task of freeing the world from its distress. His main purpose, he said, would be to lay a foundation for the coming world economic conference in London.

Mr. MacDonald is expected to tell President Roosevelt to go as far as he

38 Rebels Killed In Mexican Battle

Three Federal Soldiers Fall in Pitched Encounter in State of Yucatan.

Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, April 16 (A.P.).—Thirty-eight rebels and three federal soldiers were killed in a pitched battle at dawn today between federal troops and revolutionary defense elements at the nearvy village of Opichen. Six soldiers were wounded. Twenty of the rebels were captured and a number as yet undetermined were wounded.

The federal troops, under Col. Rafael Granja, had been ordered to the village after the revolutionary defense organization had declared itself opposed to the government and had refused to surrender its arms and ammunition.

As the detachment of 60 moved into the village at dawn it was ambushed and three soldiers killed. A pitched battle lasting two hours ensued.

Tokyo, April 16 (A.P.).—Maryse Hiltz, French aviatrix, who left Paris April 1 with the avowed purpose of seeing Japan at cherry blossom time, landed at Haneda Airdrome, a suburb of Tokyo, this afternoon. She achieved her aim, for Tokyo's world-famous cherry blossoms are now in full bloom and beautiful.

After arriving at Seoul, Korea, from Shanghai, China, Saturday night, the aviatrix made the hop from Seoul to Haneda in 8 hours 52 minutes. She arrived at Haneda at 4:18 p. m.

RED HINTS AT LIGHT BRITISH SENTENCES

Russian Defendants Scored as Worst Offenders at Moscow Trial.

Moscow, April 16 (A.P.).—The prosecutor in the trial of six British electrical engineers on charges of sabotage, bribery and espionage, indicated tonight that the prosecution may ask the court to deal more leniently with the Britons than with their Russian codefendants.

Andrey Vishinsky, the prosecutor, in summing up testimony presented during the four previous days of the hearing, declared "the prosecution considered that the Soviet employes deserve more serious penalties than employes of foreign firms."

Scathingly attacking the 11 Russian prisoners as traitors, Vishinsky maintained that "abject as is the crime of L. C. Thornton and Allan Monkhouse, I have no words to depict the attitude of the prosecution toward those who betrayed their native land."

Monkhouse, the ranking member of the Metropolitan-Vickers firm in Russia, was depicted by Vishinsky as trying "to represent that we are attacking the Metropolitan-Vickers Co."

The prosecutor maintained "that there was no claim against the British firm "as a company" and added that "Monkhouse is here as a man accused of a crime and not as a representative of Metropolitan-Vickers."

5,000 Irish Parade In Honor of Rebels

Dublin Troops Pay Tribute to Those Who Died in 1916 Revolt.

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 16 (A.P.).—About 5,000 members of the Irish Republican army marched in military formation today through the city to Glasnevin Cemetery, where they conducted exercises commemorating Republicans who were killed in the Easter uprising of 1916.

Prayers were recited in Irish, and Dr. A. F. Cooney read a proclamation by the council of the Irish Republican army, which said the army's object was to break the connection between the Irish Free State and England. The document asserted that the Irish nation has an "inalienable right to be free as a sovereign republic." A rigid boycott of British trade was urged.

Similar parades were conducted throughout the Free State.

Four Die as Boat Hits Barge Fleet

Fifth Member of Outing Party Escapes in Crash at Huntington.

Huntington, W. Va., April 16 (A.P.).—Four young men on a Sunday motorboat outing were drowned in the Ohio River today after their boat was swept under a fleet of barges. A fifth member of the party escaped.

The dead are James Smith, 23, son of State Senator Jeff Smith, of Jonesboro, Tenn.; Billy J. Predeking, 24, E. C. Campbell, 27, and Henry O. Dunfee, jr., 16, all of Huntington. Dicky Predeking, the other member of the party, swam ashore.

The driver of the boat was attempting to round the fleet of barges and apparently the engine stopped. The swift current carried the boat under the heavy craft.

FISH WOULD DEMAND CUBAN INTERVENTION

Is Opposed to Armed Force, but Says Words Should Be Sufficient.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, asserted last night he would demand of Secretary Hull that there be "diplomatic intervention to end the reign of terror in Cuba" unless the new administration "takes action within a week or ten days."

"The Cuban reign of terror, with people being shot down in cold blood, is one of the most important things that could confront this country," Fish said. "In Germany where not a single Jew was killed at first, we had mass meetings of protest in this country and State Department action.

"Nothing has been done in Cuba, where men are being shot down, the press supressed and where there is no such thing as liberty; the reason is simply that there are 4,000 Cubans and 4,000,000 Jews.

"I can't see the use of sending notes to Japan about Manchuria, where we have only a few million dollars invested, and saying nothing about Cuba, where Americans own three-quarters of the property.

"There is just one thing to do—send a strong ambassador to Cuba and have him inform President Ma-

D.A.R. TO OPEN 42D CONGRESS THIS MORNING

Delegates to Be Present for Sessions From 3,000 Chapters.

DECEASED MEMBERS HONORED YESTERDAY

Secretary Wallace, Connally and Mrs. Owen Speak at Meeting Tonight.

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

"Assembly," sounded on a silver bugle by Second Leader Arthur S. Witcomb, of the United States Marine Band, will signal the opening of the Forty-second Continental Congress of the D. A. R. in Constitution Hall this morning. Leader Witcomb has performed this same musical office for more than a score of Continental Congresses.

The congress will then be declared opened by Mrs. Russell William Magna, of Holyoke, Mass., president general, who will be escorted to the platform by her national board of management and more than 200 pages dressed in white and many of them bearing flags of the 48 States of the Union and territorial possessions.

During Anniversary Week.

Facing the president general will be delegates from more than 3,000 chapters of the organization representing every State and many foreign lands. This annual congress of the society, which is its national legislative body, meets in Washington every year in the week in which April 19, the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, falls. This is because the National Society of the D. A. R. was founded in Washington in 1890. More than 475,000 American women have belonged to the society since that time.

Yesterday afternoon with solemn rite, prayer and tribute, the memories of 2,379 members who have died since the Forty-first Continental Congress were honored at a service of remembrance in Memorial Continental Hall conducted by Mrs. Raymond Kimbell, of Illinois, national chaplain general. The central feature of the ceremony was a huge cross of candles which were lighted as the different women and groups were eulogized. The first candle on this cross was lighted by Mrs. Magna as she paid tribute to the achievements of Mrs. William Cumming Story, of New York, honorary president general, who had served the society in many capacities as well as having been its national head.

Among the District Daughters and those from nearby States thus honored were three charter members, Mrs. A. G. Wilkinson, Our Flag Chapter; Miss Virginia Miller and Mrs. A. C.

The girls' parents, Mrs. Bertha Roberts, 38, and Joseph, 42, and their brother, 5-year-old Jack, were less seriously hurt. The Roberts live in Los Angeles. They were driving from Boston to Chicago to keep a stage engagement.

Egg-Rolling Today Faces Bad Weather

White House Fete Plans Go Forward, However, Despite Outlook.

(Associated Press.)

A dreary, drizzling Easter rain, wetting the grasses to their very roots, yesterday gave small cheer to the hundreds of Washington children eagerly looking forward to today's scheduled Easter Monday White House egg rolling.

A weather forecast of "cloudy with probable showers" added little to their hopes for ideal conditions under which to roll their multicolored hard-boiled eggs over the green award.

Egg rollings have been canceled before because of weather conditions. It will be a matter for Mrs. Roosevelt to decide when she sees what this forenoon brings forth.

Meanwhile, Capital children, held indoors yesterday, put the finishing touches on their Easter baskets. No more colorful show comes with the changing seasons to the Capital than the Easter basket procession to the White House. The kindergarten-age crowds come lugging baskets almost as big as they are, filled with eggs, genuine, and candy, and enough fluffy bunnies and chicks to withstand even the roughest of a day's play.

As previous White House first ladies have done, Mrs. Roosevelt has called in adult play supervisors to help the children keep happy.

She promised to walk about the grounds, perhaps with her police dog, Major. And grandchildren, "Sistie,"

Hot-Water Burns Fatal to Child, 3

Little Girl Suffered Hurts Last Tuesday as Kettle Fell on Floor.

Three-year-old Doris Miller, of 3807 M street northwest, died yesterday morning at her home from the effects of burns suffered last Tuesday when a kettle of boiling water spilled on her.

The child's mother, Mrs. Helen Miller, heard the crash of the pot falling on the floor and her daughter's screams. The girl was rushed to Georgetown Hospital and was treated for first and second degree burns about her face, neck and chest. Two days later Doris was taken back home and had been under the care of a private physician.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, acting coroner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS CATHEDRAL SERVICE

Makes Easter Communion in Presence of Great Congregation.

By ELISABETH E. POE.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States, himself a cathedral builder through his monumental services as chairman of the campaign committee of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, and senior warden of St. James Church, Hyde Park, made his Easter communion yesterday morning in Washington Cathedral, the foundation stone of which had been placed in the presence of Theodore Roosevelt, the original Roosevelt President, 26 years ago. He was accompanied to Washington Cathedral by Mrs. Roosevelt, his son, James Roosevelt; Louis Howe and Mr. and Mrs. M. Ames, guests at the White House.

The great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral was filled to its utmost capacity when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived to attend the 10:30 o'clock celebration of holy communion and sermon. It was estimated that 2,200 worshipers and pil-

EASTER CROWDS FILL CHURCHES, IN SPITE OF RAIN

Roosevelt Family Leads Trek to Annual Rites at Cathedral.

NEW SPRING OUTFITS OF MANY DRENCHED

Thousands of Visitors Swell Number Already Here to See Blossoms.

In a driving rain that ruined more than one Easter bonnet but which did not keep thousands from attending church services throughout the city, the Capital yesterday celebrated the anniversary of Christ's Resurrection.

The annual fashion parade on Washington's broad avenues was definitely off as an early morning light mist turned to rain which increased as the day grew older. And many of those who ventured to church in their new spring costumes were drenched as they waited in long lines which often extended well outside of the protecting covers of the church structures.

Visitors Pour In.

Thousands of visitors poured into the city for one-day visits to swell the already large throng that had come here last week. Many came to see the Japanese cherry blossoms, token of friendship to this country from Nippon, but were disappointed when the rain almost ruined the last buds which had remained on the trees around the Monument and Tidal Basin.

The first family of the land attended the morning sermon and communion service at the Washington Cathedral. Here the President, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and their son, James, Louis M. Howe and Mrs. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Ames, of Boston, and other members of the Presidential family heard Bishop James E. Freeman preach, saying that with the first Easter dawn, the disciples found "a new power which changed them from impotent men to leaders of triumphant strength." "Power in one form or another is the logical and legitimate quest of life," Bishop Freeman said.

Throngs jammed the entrance way to the Great Choir of the cathedral where the services were held. Hundreds never reached the doorway. Inside every corner of the great room was crowded with worshipers who had come, many of them for the first time in a year, to fulfill a long-time church obligation, to go to church on Easter time. And while the President prayed a half a dozen Secret Service operatives aided by the ushers kept the aisles cleared as best they could while they surveyed one of the largest crowds of the general public to surround the President since he has taken office.

Wears New Blue Gown.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a new blue gown with blouse broad striped in blue and white, a blue straw hat with low crown and brim up, turned at the side. A blue cloak and white gloves completed her Easter ensemble.

And although it appeared that all of Washington was trying to gain entrance to the cathedrals, the other churches throughout the city were packed to overflowing.

Early morning services were conducted at 7:30 a. m. at the Army Medical Center and at Arlington.

Army Band Program.

At Walter Reed a program of sacred music was played by the Army Band. A Catholic mass was also celebrated. Services were conducted by the chaplain, Frank L. Miller, who preached on "The Joy of Easter." Chaplain Joseph R. Koch officiated at the mass, with Sergt. E. Coffey assisting.

At the Arlington Amphitheater a special service was held under the

Bits of Akron Are Found; Hunt May End Wednesday

Admiral Pratt Says That Unless Yesterday's Find Develops, Search for Wreck and Bodies of Victims Will Be Abandoned.

(Associated Press.)

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, reported last night that ships searching for the remains of the airship Akron had found pieces of the dirigible's outer covering late yesterday afternoon, but added that unless the find developed the search would be called off next Wednesday.

The naval operations chief said that although he had not yet worked out on his maps the latitude and longitude of the spot where the debris was found yesterday, he understood it was within a 10-mile area of the spot where the ship crashed during a lightning-filled storm off Barnegat Light, New Jersey, on April 4.

"We have been combing this area intensively," Pratt said. "We have searched and searched and its apparently gone to the bottom. We are hopeful that today's find may mean that we have at last located the spot where the main part of the ship is resting.

"Of course, if this discovery is productive, we will continue our search as long as necessary. But unless we find more of the wreckage by Wednesday we will give orders to abandon the search. Unless successful by then, it looks hopeless."

Admiral Pratt said the standing orders now out were that the searching ships continue their work during every minute that weather permitted. He said he presumed the [illegible] yesterday would spur on the search during the night if the weather off the coast would allow it.

Even as these disclosures were made, plans went forward to continue the naval court of inquiry into

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR RITES HELD IN RAIN

Dawn Service at Arlington Cemetery Marred by Steady Downpour.

While trumpets blared forth in salute to a misty Easter dawn, thousands gathered yesterday in the Arlington Amphitheater to pay homage to a Risen Lord.

Almost simultaneously there came a sudden shower of rain that sent all but the bravest scurrying to the sheltering cover of the amphitheater's outer rim.

As the rain continued and became heavier the distant notes of the United States Marine Band were heard above the patter of raindrops. The official procession, which had formed at the west gate of Arlington Cemetery, marched in a dignified column of twos into the inclosure. Dividing into single file they proceeded down the marble aisles to the platform.

Following the band came L. Whiting Estes, grand commander of the Knights Templar, under whose auspices the services were held; Dr. Zebarney T. Phillips, Chaplain of the Senate; Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, and other dignitaries, who filed to their places on the platform in apparent oblivion of the inclement weather.

Black and white uniformed Knights Templar of the District of Columbia and visiting commanderies followed and with military precision took their places in the center row of seats. Many were without the protection of even a cape. Some had taken the precaution to cover the white feather plumes of their hats with a rain cover.

A hymn was sung, led by Homer S. Pope, director of the Masonic Glee Club. A prayer was offered by Chaplain Montgomery, including therein the Lord's Prayer, a plea for redemption and a call for guidance for the Nation. Chaplain Phillips then led the apostles' creed, repeated in unison, while the knights presented swords, hilts upward. He followed this with a prayer.

The Rev. Sir Knight John C. Palmer, grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia, read for the Scripture lesson the twenty-eighth chapter of Matthew, verses one through ten. The first verse of the hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today," was then sung.

As the Right Rev. Warren L. Rogers, Episcopal Bishop of Ohio, and grand prelate of the Ohio Knights Templar, began his ten-minute sermon, he was asked to step back to compartive shelter from the rain. This action disrupted the use of the amplifiers.

"This is not a time for confusion, but a time for confidence," said the venerable prelate, clothed in a purple robe with a black and red cape, in striking contrast to the white marble of the amphitheater. "We need not be disturbed when empires fall about us. Rather, we need be disturbed by our own lack of a life's purpose.

"Life is more than a seeking for material things. We must have ideals. We must strive to reach them. We must have the courage to grasp the great undertakings of the human spirit. Death is not simply a door, but an entrance into another stage of life. Lift up your heads, for ye shall live again."

The services were closed with a prayer by Capt. Sidney K. Evans, chief of chaplains, United States Navy, and the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the Marine Band.

chado that the state of terror has to cease and that he must step aside for a provisional president to be appointed by himself, who would be a neutral between the warring factions. Then an election must be called to amend the constitution.

"I am opposed to intervention by armed force, but mere words from the United States should be sufficient to bring about the desired result."

Fish said that since the United States had won Cuba's independence from "the brutal misrule of Spain" it is incumbent upon this Government to maintain the rights of Cubans for which the Spanish-American War was fought.

"Besides that," Fish continued, "we have on our law books the Platt amendment, which guarantes that the United States will protect the life, liberty and happiness of the Cubans. There is now, of course, no government there adequate for that.

"It would dishonor the memory of Americans who lost their lives if the causes of the Spanish-American War were allowed to continue in Cuba."

The New Yorker asserted that both the Republican and Democratic administrations had "done their best to ignore" conditions in Cuba, and that Machado had been able to retain control largely because "of the support of New York bankers."

"We must bring the whole thing into the open," Fish asserted, adding that he already had discussed the situation with State Department officials and that if nothing were done soon he would talk with Secretary Hull personally.

"I hope to say some of these things on the House floor as soon as I can get an opportunity," Fish said.

New York Parades Despite Drab Skies

Smart Set Sports Funny Hats and Gray Is Leading Shade.

Pope Gives Benediction From Balcony of St. Peter's.

New York, April 16 (A.P.).—Was it Easter? Fifth avenue shivered, kicked off the covers where she slept beneath the Washington Arch this morning, considered the chilly mists over the garment district, and wasn't sure.

Beneath gray skies she struggled bravely the fifteen blocks to Twenty-third street, where Broadway crosses her path and forms Madison Square and the queer Flatiron Building's plot. It was bleak and desolate.

She ventured out a little farther. She couldn't see the top of Al Smith's Empire State Building at Thirty-fourth street for the low clouds. There was no use hanging around the big department stores there, their ruffled curtains sabbatically drawn and their wide sidewalks vacant. She tried a few more blocks.

And suddenly, at Forty-second street, where the stone lions crouch on the broad steps of the public library, it was Easter. It was Easter from there all the way up to 110th street, where Central Park stops and the famous thoroughfare loses its distinction in the vagaries of the Hinterland called "uptown."

You could tell by all the glistening black top hats, by the newness of the women's clothes, by the flowers and by the crowds on top of the green buses and on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The people strolled up and down both sides of the street, seeing and being seen. They wore cutaway coats and spats and bright spring gowns and smart but funny hats—flat and round and much more striking than the Empress Eugenie style—and they didn't care a fig for the lowering skies. Quite a few carried umbrellas, though.

The young women who write the society news seemed to think gray was the most popular color, but maybe that was because there were so many shades of it. A lot of women wore gray gowns with hats and shoes of navy blue, the shoes having slightly lower heels this year.

But all the colors were on parade—brown, green, red, yellow—as kaleidoscopic a sight as the Easter promenade ever has produced. The men, of course, wore much the same things they always have.

San Francisco Climbs Mountainside at Dawn

San Francisco, April 16 (A.P.).—In a symbolic reenactment of the bitter journey of a few of Christ's followers to Calvary on the third day after the Crucifixion, a crowd of 5,000 before dawn today climbed the steep sides of Mount Davidson, southwest of the city. As the light of the sun touched the tall cross there, they listened again to the tidings of Christ's rising.

A cold night wind from the Pacific swept the peak and a few stars still blinked over San Francisco as men and women ventured into empty streets and up the mountainside. Storm clouds gathered, but there was no precipitation.

As the moment of sunrise approached, a band slowly played "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and the masses grouped at the cross sent doubtful glances toward the east, where the skies were changing from dark blue to a cool gray. At that instant an orange glow irradiated the clouds and the silver Bay of San Francisco far below.

Between layers of mists touched with gold the sun appeared as the Rev. Charles P. Deems, of Trinity Episcopal Church, uttered the invocation.

Atlantic City Is Colorful With 500,000 Visitors

Atlantic City, N. J., April 16 (A.P.).—A man in an all pink spring suit and a wrestler in a gay Cossack costume wheeled about by his manager contributed to the color of the throngs on the boardwalk today.

Despite the heavy mist which obscured the sun all day and the constant danger of rain drenching new Easter togs, the boardwalk promenaders were estimated as many as 500,000 by railroads and hotel men.

New Yorkers, led by Gov. Herbert Lehman, and Philadelphians, contributed by far the largest number of visitors. An international touch was added through the influx of several thousand Canadians.

Despite the eccentric touches added by the Cossack wrestler and the pink-clad male, women, as usual, dominated the fashion display. Light blues and grays, with the shoulders padded, or built out with cloth or furs to give their figures the appearance of the letter "T" were plentiful. Radical spring models had shoulders resembling airplane wings and the wearers had the appearance of being ready to take off.

Pope Says Easter Mass For First Time Since 1870

Rome, April 16 (A.P.).—For the first time in more than threescore years, a Pope today imparted the Easter benediction to his diocese from the balcony of St. Peter's.

Promptly on the appearance of Pius XI before a huge crowd that thronged St. Peter's Square, church bells in Rome rang out in unison. It was a signal for all the faithful to kneel and receive the blessing.

In churches, homes, and even in the streets people knelt in reverence.

Saddened Rockefeller Kept Home by Drizzle

Ormond Beach, Fla., April 16 (A. P.).—Saddened by the death of his old friend and golfing partner, Gen. Adelbert Ames, who died at his winter home here last Thursday, John D. Rockefeller, sr., today spent a quiet Easter. For the most part he stuck by his hearthside at the Casements.

A cold drizzle of rain discouraged the 93-year-old philanthropist from taking his morning stroll down the lane along the Halifax River, but did not prevent his usual Sunday morning attendance at the little Ormond Union Church.

jammed the Basilica Square to be present at the ceremony. Fifty thousand crowded into the great cathedral for Easter mass, which the Pope himself said, resuming a custom not observed since 1870.

Snow in Arkansas Areas Hurts Easter Observance

Little Rock, Ark., April 16 (A.P.).—A dish of cool weather was served up to the South for its Easter, but clearing skies afforded an opportunity for the usual parade of new finery in most places.

Hardest hit was Arkansas, where Eastern rabbits could be tracked through snow in some mountainous northwest localities.

Disregarding the gloom of a dismal Easter, residents of the northwestern and northern sections apprehensively surveyed damage done yesterday by a heavy snowfall and rising rivers fed by snows and rains of the past few days.

Snow fell over the bounteous fruit section of northwest Arkansas, ranging as deep as a foot in some places, but most of it melted last night. Fruit growers expressed the belief low clouds had kept temperatures from dropping too low. Thousands of dollars of damage was done.

The remainder of the South fared better. Rain nearly all day hindered the celebration in Miami, Fla., but a good-sized crowd came out, nevertheless, to attend the sunrise Easter service on the beach.

Georgians in Atlanta had sunshine that tempered a chill atmosphere. The thermometer stood at 62 this afternoon.

Down in New Orleans the folks came out in a chill temperature, but sunshine dispelled any dismal thoughts.

Memphis, Tenn., had fair skies and a temperature that rose from 41 this morning to the middle fifties this afternoon.

Simplicity Is Keynote Of Jerusalem Services

Jerusalem, April 16 (A.P.).—Simplicity and the unassuming character of the rites at Easter Sunday services here today afforded a vivid contrast with the ornate ceremonies of Saturday, when the Greek Orthodox community celebrated the ceremony of holy fire, the most spectacular of Easter observances.

The weather was sunny and beautiful. The pealing of church bells throughout Jerusalem called streams of people to church and marked the anniversary of Christ's arising.

All churches of every denomination were crowded with residents of Jerusalem, devout pilgrims and American tourists who arrived during the week-end.

PRESIDENT AT CATHEDRAL RITES

grims were inside the cathedral and formed part of the congregation which filled every seat in the great choir, its adjoining chapels and a portion of the recently completed north transept. Thousands more, unable to get admittance, stood outside in the pouring rain until the President and his party left the cathedral at the conclusion of the service. This was the largest congregation ever assembled in the great choir and sanctuary.

The sermon was preached by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, who found his Easter theme in the words of St. Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews, chapter vii, "Made after the power of an endless life." First of all, the bishop pointed out the message of hope to the world in recurring the Easter message of immortality of the soul.

"Christ invested mankind with a new dynamic on Easter morning," exclaimed the bishop. "He changed the whole course of human history. The greatest power in all the world comes from the risen Saviour of mankind.

"This is no day to preach. We should rather look facts straight in the face. We must realize that satisfaction comes alone from the open tomb on that first Easter morning. Spiritual power is personified by Easter. The whole purpose of this sacred service which is being repeated in every part of the world today, is to give men and women an opportunity to express that without which life can have no satisfaction for them."

Shortly before the time set for the Presidential party to arrive, Bishop Freeman, in the full canonical robes of his office, accompanied by the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington, and the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral, and preceded by the head verger bearing the silver mace of cathedral authority, went to a center doorway in the temporary western partition of the Great Choir and Sanctuary. Entering from the north side of the construction yard, the White House automobile was driven over the concrete foundations of the great nave to this spot, where, as President Roosevelt stepped from his car, he was welcomed to Washington Cathedral by Bishop Freeman. Dean Bratenahl then escorted him to his seat in the first row, while Mrs. Roosevelt was brought to her place beside him by Canon Peter. Behind sat Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, and a party of friends.

Two Visiting Bishops.

The presidential party seated, the processional of choir and clergy began from the North Transept into the Great Choir and Sanctuary. A sturdy crucifer bore at the head of the long line of choir and clergy a gleaming, golden processional cross, the gift of the Emperor of Abyssinia to the cathedral several years ago. "Jesus Christ is risen today, alleluia," sang the purple and white vested men and boys and the first festival Easter service in the Great Choir and Sanctuary since it was opened to the public nearly a year ago began.

In the processional were the cathedral clergy and two visiting bishops, the Right Rev. Julius Walter Atwood, retired Bishop of Arizona, and the Right Rev. Warren Lincoln Rogers, Bishop of Ohio. Before Bishop Freeman walked Canon Raymond L. Wolven, chaplain to the Bishop of Washington, carrying his pastoral staff.

The Holy Communion was celebrated by Canon Peter, the Epistle and Gospel for Easter Day being read by Canon John W. Gummere and Dean Bratenahl, respectively. After the sacred elements had been received by the clergy, the Bishop and Dean Bratenahl left the altar and went to the President, where he sat in an arm chair. The bishop gave the paten of consecrated bread to the President, which he reverently partook, after which the dean gave him the golden chalice containing the consecrated wine. Mrs. Roosevelt and her son and other members of the President's party made their communions at the altar with the first group of communicants from the congregation.

White House Flowers.

On the altar lilies sent by President and Mrs. Roosevelt recalled the holy meaning of the festal day.

The hymn before the sermon, "The Strife Is O'er, the Battle Won," was sung at the burial service for President Woodrow Wilson, under whom President Roosevelt had served, whose tomb is in the Bethlehem Chapel of the cathedral crypt.

Other passages from Bishop Freeman's striking sermon were these:

"It is a remarkable fact in the case of those peasant disciples who were followers of Jesus Christ that, when the resurrection came, it not only changed the tenor of their lives, but the very character of the men themselves. Up to that moment they had been doubtful, fearful followers of our Lord. With the Easter dawn, however, there came a new power which changed them from impotent men to leaders of triumphant strength.

"Power in one form or another is the logical and legitimate quest of life. If the quest for power through knowledge should ever cease, then that power itself would be suspended which gives us so many of the blessings and comforts of our modern life.

Hunt for Soul Satisfaction.

"The quest for a developed physical life is perfectly normal and legitimate. We long to show our progress and our skill—indeed, we are all athletes in a proper sense of the term.

"Now, rising a step higher, it is perfectly normal and logical for the human mind and heart to search for spiritual power. We often search for something which we find it impossible to express in adequate terms. I say with no fear of contradiction, however, that every normal man or woman is searching today for soul-satisfaction. Furthermore, they will not be satisfied unless they find the peace that rests in God."

In closing, Bishop Freeman quoted the following words which, he said, were read by President Woodrow Wilson just before he passed away: "The eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms."

The offertory anthem was "Lights, Glittering Morn Bedecks the Sky," by Horatio Parker, rendered by the cathedral choir of men and boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest. Following the recessional hymn, "The Day of Resurrection! Earth Tell It Out Abroad," President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt and the members of their party were escorted down the central aisle by James P. Berkeley, head verger of the cathedral, where Bishop Freeman bade them good-by informally before they entered their motor cars. Although the rain was pouring down through the unfinished arches and piers of the cathedral fabric, the President paused to chat a moment with the bishop and members of the cathedral staff.

Prominent Worshipers.

Arrangements for seating the large congregation and welcoming the out-of-town visitors were handled efficiently by the Cathedral Guild of Ushers, with the assistance of a group of students from St. Albans, the National Cathedral School for Boys, and representatives of the Secret Service under Col. Edward Starling. A large number of Easter pilgrims to the National Capital remained for the pilgrimage conducted by Canon John W. Gummere, immediately following the service.

Among those in the congregation were Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven, Bishop Freeman's daughter; Palmer Jaffrey, of Minneapolis, his son-in-law; Miss Mary Jaffrey, granddaughter of the Bishop; Mrs. G. C. F. Bratenahl, Mrs. G. Freeland Peter, Mrs. James Parmelee, Mrs. Henry Clay Folger, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Mrs. E. Hope Slater, Mrs. Alexander Mackay Smith, Miss Mabel B. Turner, principal of the National Cathedral School, and 50 students from that school, representing all parts of the country; a group from International House on Riverside Drive in New York, composed of representatives of many foreign nations, and Dudley Crafts Watson, with twelve pupils from the Art Institute of Chicago.

Another large congregation filled the Great Choir at the choral evensong service at 4 p. m. when the sermon was delivered by Bishop Rogers, of Ohio. Several thousand pilgrims and worshipers passed through the Bethlehem Chapel, where President Woodrow Wilson, Admiral George Dewey, Bishop Henry Yates Satterlee, Melville Elijah Stone and other eminent Americans are buried.

The Cathedral authorities estimate that between 7,500 and 10,000 people were welcomed at Mt. St. Albans from the time the Bethlehem Chapel opened at 7:30 a. m. until the curator's office closed at 5:30 p. m.

WALTER REED SCENE OF EASTER SERVICES

Chaplain Miller Emphasizes Joy in Relation to Holy Week.

More than 3,000 persons gathered at Walter Reed Hospital early yesterday to attend the traditional open-air service in celebration of Easter.

Surrounded by the beauty of late blooming cherry blossoms, celebrants were addressed by Chaplain Frank L. Miller, of the Walter Reed staff. He spoke on "The Joy of Easter."

He explained the development of joy in the teachings of religion. Joy, he stated, was born with first Easter Day and has been embodied in all of the teachings and beliefs of the church.

The early disciples, he pointed out, were glad because they had found a friend in Christ. Later they began to see their friend remained undefeated by man's bad actions and on Easter Day found proof of divinity in their friend. In his teachings, the chaplain stated, the disciples found joy in their realization of man's immortality. The Gray Ladies of the hospital attended the services.

FRIENDS OF EMPIRE WATCH TALKS HERE

likes or as far as he can with Congress about tariffs.

How much such a declaration would affect the Ottawa agreements will not be determined so much by Mr. MacDonald as by the forthcoming negotiations between Premier Richard B. Bennett, of Canada, and the President.

May Start Revision.

Canada holds the key to the Ottawa agreements as far as the United States is concerned.

The Ottawa pacts themselves contain provisions for alterations, and the Washington talks may start the machinery going.

Whether the Ottawa agreements have been successful remains a moot question, but British tariff enthusiasts remain enthusiastic over the possibilities of the Empire pacts.

A score of nations have been brought to Great Britain's doorstep to negotiate for trade agreements.

Efforts over a period of three months have resulted in pacts with Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Germany, but so far failure has marked protracted negotiations with Britain's important Latin American customer, Argentina.

The world depression, political circles point out, has prevented any test of the system of empire preferences.

Dominion purchases from the mother country undoubtedly have been boosted, but the Ottawa agreements have not boosted the general volume of world trade.

Both Need Purchases.

Great Britain as well as the United States need such an increase for putting their armies of unemployed to work.

The argument most often heard in British political circles from men who embraced the tariff policy under the national government regime is that it was a weapon to use in a world fight for the freer international exchange of goods.

It is authoritatively believed, furthermore, that this is the use Prime Minister MacDonald will make of the Ottawa agreements in tariff discussions with President Roosevelt.

S. S. Berengaria, en Route to the United States, April 16 (A.P.).—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, crossing the Atlantic to engage in conferences with President Roosevelt at Washington, attended Easter services this morning aboard this vessel.

He arose earlier than most of the other passengers and walked about the deck with his daughter, Ishbel. He was dressed in tweeds. Afterward he spent several hours working with the experts who are accompanying him.

Will Meet Herriot.

It was announced that a meeting has been arranged between the premier and former Premier Edouard Herriot, who will represent France in the international conferences, in Washington on Monday, April 24. A meeting also has been arranged between Mr. MacDonald and Premier Bennett, of Canada, at Washington.

Mr. MacDonald will address the Pilgrims dinner in New York Wednesday, April 26, before embarking that night on the Berengaria for the return trip to England.

A heavy provisional program for the premier's meeting with the President is being arranged by wireless.

The present plans include a number of private dinners at the White House, a luncheon at the Canadian Legation and a Sunday boating trip with the President on the Potomac River.

To save time, Mr. MacDonald will disembark at quarantine and go to a B. & O. Railroad station in New Jersey for a direct trip to Washington.

The British experts with the premier may stay behind in Washington after his departure if the State Department thinks it necessary for this purpose of exploring lines of future cooperation in insuring success of the world economic conference.

Trio Badly Burned In Plane Accident

Failure to Gain Altitude Results in Crash at Riverside, Calif.

Riverside, Calif., April 16 (A.P.).—Three enlisted men at March Field, Army air base near here, were injured and burned critically today by the crash of a private plane in which they were flying near the base. The men were O. K. Harris, enlisted pilot, who owned the plane, L. W. Hunter and C. W. Ritari.

Taking off, Harris failed to gain sufficent altitude to clear a high-tension wire and, in banking, the ship slipped to the ground, striking on a wing and bursting into flames.

Although badly burned, the men extricated themselves from the wreckage. They were taken to the field hospital.

HERRIOT WILL SEEK REWRITING OF DEBTS

Six-Point Program That He'll Discuss With Roosevelt Disclosed.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Le Havre, France, April 16.—France will seek the entire rewriting of British and American debt claims as the basis of her program to be followed at the Washington conversations, it was learned authoritatively tonight. It is a six-point program former Premier Edouard Herriot, chief French delegate, will seek to carry out in his conversations with President Roosevelt.

Herriot reached Le Havre from Paris this evening. His arrival was delayed somewhat on the way when a member of his motorcycle police escort was injured in a collision. Herriot arrived in time for a dinner given in his honor by Deputy Leon Meyer, Mayor of Le Havre, at which he spoke briefly.

His party will go on board the liner Ile de France, sailing before noon tomorrow. Six financial, economic and political experts accompanied Herriot.

French Position Bared.

The French position in the Washington parleys will include these points:

1. War debts—France seeks the rewriting of British and American debt claims in keeping with French sacrifices at Lausanne, to such an extent as to assure that France will not bear the entire burden of the war costs.

2. Currencies—France will encourage American initiative to bring British and other currencies back to the gold standard.

3. Tariffs—France is willing to enter into bi-lateral (two nation) tariff agreements, either sweeping or individual.

4. Arms—Herriot will make a full exposure of the French plan deposited at Geneva, which France thinks is the most practical solution of the armaments problem yet offered. It makes disarmament progressive, depending on the accomplishment of scheduled security guarantees.

"Peace Club" Plan.

5. European peace—Herriot will discuss minutely the French "peace club" plan based on both the Mussolini four-power pact and the British arms readjustment plans, stressing, however, that tinkering with the treaties on frontiers and territorial rights at present would be dangerous to peace.

6. Economic—Herriot will pledge solid French support to President Roosevelt's desire for early convening of the proposed world economic conference, as a basic means of bringing about world recovery.

Herriot will have nothing to say if Mr. Roosevelt asks when France intends to pay the defaulted December war debt instalment or whether she will meet the June payment. Premier Edouard Daladier having made it abundantly clear that the government will not take any action on war debts until Herriot returns.

Herriot will leave the way open to the possibility of Mr. Roosevelt's making some gesture sufficient to appease the French parliament and get it to vote the necessary war debt credits. The 1933 budget, passed last week before the Chamber of Deputies adjourned until May 16, had no provision for war debt payments.

Herriot will have no authority to make any decisions at Washington, it was emphasized, going more for information and good will than actual negotiations.

6: "Buzzie," 2½, were to circulate, too.

No set entertainment, such as May pole and folk dances, was planned, but various groups were preparing to add to the gaiety in an impromptu fashion. At least one children's band was planning to come in with the rest of the boys and girls and put on a wandering minstrels' performance if given a chance.

The helpful Girl Scouts were organizing again to aid in returning lost children to the proper places. The balloon man and the organ grinder, not permitted on the grounds, were planning to seek sites nearby. And the red-jacketed Marine Band was getting ready to tune up for one of the big days of the year—always, of course, if the weather permits.

ITALIAN FLIER FELT GROUNDED IN BURMA

Fears Arise for L. Robiano; Lancaster Is Unreported; Joan Batten Crashes.

Rangoon, Burma, April 16 (A.P.).—Fears were felt here tonight for the safety of the Italian aviator, L. Robiano, who is believed to have been forced down in some remote part of Burma.

Robiano, who is flying from Lympne, England, to Australia, has been unreported since leaving Calcutta at 10:30 p. m. Friday for Victoria, Burma.

Flying conditions have been extremely bad, with rain, wind and severe thunderstorms heralding the approach of the dreaded monsoon.

The flier arrived in Calcutta Friday afternoon after a nonstop flight from Karachi through a heavy rain.

Lancaster Unreported.

Algiers, Algeria, April 16 (A.P.).—Reports received up until a late hour tonight from posts in the southern Sahara Desert said no trace had been found of Capt. William Lancaster, British pilot, who set out last week on a flight from England to Cape Town, South Africa.

A French motorcar which was sent out from Reggan, Morocco, made an unsuccessful search in the desert for the flier.

(Capt. Lancaster took off from Reggan Wednesday night despite approaching darkness. He has been unreported since.)

Jean Batten in Crash.

Karachi, India, April 16 (A.P.).—Jean Batten, 23-year-old New Zealand girl attempting an England-to-Australia flight, suffered her second accident in three days when her plane cracked up near here today. She was bruised and exhausted by the experience.

Miss Batten had taken off from a field near Baluchi village after fitting a new propeller to her small biplane, replacing one damaged in a forced landing Thursday night. Today engine trouble overtook her and her craft glided into a stone fence.

The plane, formerly owned by the Prince of Wales, was damaged badly. While not seriously hurt, Miss Batten did not say whether she intended to continue her flight. After her first mishap in a sandstorm she obtained a camel and rode it for six hours before she encountered a truckdriver who brought her here.

Fire Extinguisher Starts Movie Panic

Six Children Are Injured as Spray of Chemical Causes Stampede.

Yonkers, N. Y., April 16 (A.P.).—A fire extinguisher caused a stampede in a Yonkers theater late today, in which six children were slightly injured.

A youth, leaving the Terrace Theater, tripped over a fire extinguisher on the floor near the door. The stream of chemical was set off. A boy nearby yelled "fire" and adults and children in the filled 350-seat theater rushed for the door.

Six children, trampled in the dash for exit, were slightly bruised, treated at a hospital and taken home.

Puerto Rican Chamber Overrides Gov. Beverley

San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 16 (A. P.).—The Legislature, continuing sessions started Saturday, today passed over the veto of Gov. James R. Beverley a new election law recognizing the four principal parties in the island. A number of the legislators said they believed it was the first instance in which a measure had been passed over the governor's veto.

Mr. Beverley said in his veto message that the law should more closely follow the idea of the two-party system and that ample time remained for passing a new law, if it was needed before the next election in 1936.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD MENACE INCREASES

Tallahatchie Is on Rampage; 75,000 Acres Inundated in Yazoo County.

Batesville, Miss., April 16 (A.P.).—Serious flood dangers tonight confronted the Coldwater and Tallahatchie Valleys, comprising Panola, Quitman and Tallahatchie Counties, already burdened by serious overflows as a result of additional heavy rains that have fallen in the last two days.

The Tallahatchie River is beating heavily against Panola County levees in the vicinity of Asa and Stone, which are already weakened by relentless hammering during the last four weeks.

Levees are being patroled, sandbagging will be enforced tomorrow should the Tallahatchie show signs of breaking through.

The Tallahatchie and Coldwater Rivers, which dropped during the latter part of last week, are slowly rising. South Panola County, affected by local rains, is inundated. Farther south in Tallahatchie County, 25 miles of dykes, are being strengthened, and the men worked today to strengthen weak spots between Phillips and Glendora.

The central Mississippi delta, comprising Leflore, Humphreys and Yazoo Counties, is threatened seriously by flood, and Atchafalaya district commissioners in Humphreys County said the increased flood waters sweeping down the Coldwater and Tallahatchie Valleys further endangers the dykes at Wasp Lake, Silver City and near Yazoo City.

The Yazoo Basin is endangered by this flood and also by backwater from the Mississippi River.

Approximately 75,000 acres are under water in Yazoo County.

19-Year-Olds Lead U.S. Crime Parade

Auto Theft Ranks First in Volume, According to Federal Tables.

(United Press.)

Persons 19 years of age lead the Nation's crime parade, and automobile stealing is their most widespread offense, the Department of Justice announced last night. It compiled its figures from fingerprint cards received by the Bureau of Investigation for the first three months of 1933.

"The following figures," reads the bureau's report, "shows the percentage of the total number of persons arrested who were under 21 years of age: Auto theft, 45.8 per cent; burglary, 38.8 per cent, and robbery, 27.9 per cent.

"Persons under 25 years of age constituted 40 per cent of those whose arrest records were examined, and persons between 25 and 29 years of age accounted for approximately 19 per cent of the total number arrested.

"Most of the persons arrested were males, the females numbering only 5,221, or 6.5 per cent. Approximately 35 per cent of the persons arrested had a previous record in the identification files of the United States Bureau of Investigation."

Roosevelt Pushes Relief Measures

Road Aid and Coordinator's Naming to Be Offered in Few Days.

(Associated Press.)

Closely eyeing the congressional legislative jam, President Roosevelt is going to put indirect pressure behind it this week with the submission of more of his emergency proposals.

The measure for railroad relief and the appointment of a Federal coordinator for the carriers will go forward within a few days. A conference on the tangle over banking reform also is in prospect.

Confident of an early break in the snarl on Capitol Hill that is holding up the farm and $500,000,000 direct aid bills, the President meanwhile is turning his attention to the international phase of his recovery program and the forthcoming visits of the foreign statesmen.

House Is Due to Vote Arms Embargo Today

(Associated Press.)

Party lines are expected by leaders to fall today as the House reaches its vote on the McReynolds resolution to empower President Roosevelt to place embargoes on shipments of arms and munitions to aggressor countries in conflict.

Indications are that the measure will be adopted over stubborn opposition unless a motion to send the proposal back to the House Foreign Affairs Committee is approved. It is on this move that the opponents base their only hope to open up the measure for amendment.

Baltimore Man Is Fined As Hit-and-Run Driver

Charles E. Klein, of Baltimore, was fined $100 by Mayor L. P. Daniels, of Falls Church, Va., Saturday night when he was found guilty of driving the hit-and-run car which injured James Judy, 6-year-old son of J. C. Judy, Washington policeman, in Falls Church, early last week.

The boy was returning home from school when he was struck by the car. Although Klein denied having been in Falls Church at the time of the accident, he was identified by several witnesses.

Dry Again

South Carolina Gets Beer, but Thirsty Citizens Soon Absorb All.

Columbia, S. C., April 16 (A.P.).—South Carolina today laid claim to being the driest "beer" State in the Union, and Greenville residents, after a survey, declared it the "driest wet city."

Beer of the 3.2 variety came to Columbia for a while this evening, but it didn't last long. At 6:30 p. m. a hotel received 2,400 bottles. Two hours later its rathskeller, cafeteria, dining room patrons and guests, and a few outsiders, had taken the whole lot—at 35 cents a bottle.

It and other big hotels promised to have more tomorrow, and chain stores were reported expecting good supplies from their headquarters. Cafes, drug stories, groceries and almost all similar places announced they expected shipments tomorrow through a wholesaler who had promised deliveries.

A boat from Baltimore was expected to land a large beer cargo at Charleston, and many concerns throughout the State had chartered trucks to go to brewery points for supplies.

Dry Agent Expires From Raid Wounds

Farmer, Two Sons and One Other Are Charged With Murder.

Jonesboro, Ark., April 16 (A.P.).—Leroy Woods, 33, Federal prohibition agent, died today from bullet wounds received yesterday in a fight at a farm home near here after he and another officer had arrested three members of a family for violation of the prohibition law. The other officer, R. W. Keck, was beaten severely on the head, but he was reported improved today.

J. L. Wilkerson, 60, who with two of his sons was rearrested immediately after the shooting, was quoted by officers today as admitting he fired the fatal shots. Wilkerson and his sons, Otto and Fred, were held on first degree murder charges. Albert Bradley also was arrested today on murder charges.

Woods had been employed as a prohibition agent two years. He is survived by his wife and mother who live at Osceola.

SECOND SCOTTSBORO RETRIAL IS ON TODAY

Chief of Defense Counsel to Move for Change of Venue.

Decatur, Ala., April 16 (A.P.).—A new movement to transfer the Scottsboro case from north Alabama tonight appeared certain as attorneys, witnesses and veniremen gathered for the trial of Charlie Weems, 22, second of nine Negroes to face retrial.

Weems' trial was set for tomorrow in Morgan Circuit Court under a chenge of venue from Jackson County, where he and seven companions were sentenced to death two years ago.

Joseph R. Brodsky, of New York, employed by the International Labor Defense in behalf of the Negroes, when Weems was arraigned April 8, asked for a continuance to gather evidence to support a motion for a change of venue.

To this, Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, chief of defense counsel, last night in New York added the word that a change of venue "probably to Mobile" would be asked on the contention that prejudice here would prevent a fair trial.

If the movement fails, then a motion to quash the venire because of alleged "systematic and arbitrary exclusion of Negroes" from juries, "solely because of their race," will be filed.

This action was taken in behalf of Heywood Patterson, 19, of Chattanooga, first of the Negroes to be retried. A jury convicted him with the death penalty last Sunday.

Leibowitz last night in New York said: "We will charge our lives were threatened, that during the trial (of Patterson) it was necessary to have military protection and that this surely indicates without doubt that we can not obtain fair trials in Decatur, which is a hotbed of intolerance and open prejudice."

National Guardsmen who were here during the trial of Patterson already were back last night.

DELEGATES OF D. A. R. ARRIVE FOR OPENING SESSIONS TODAY

Janin, Mary Washington Chapter, whose eulogy was pronounced by Mrs. Edward L. Hodgkins and Miss Elizabeth Pierce, of the Constitution Chapter, who had served as recording secretary general and later as chaplain general. Mrs. Gaius M. Brumbaugh, of the District, spoke in tribute to Miss Pierce.

Prominent Speakers.

The formal opening of the Congress will take place in Constitution Hall tonight. It will be attended by the delegates in full force, while among the guests of honor will be prominent officials of this Government and representatives of foreign lands as well. Secretary Henry A. Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture; former Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, newly appointed Minister to Denmark, and Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, will be the speakers, and the invocation will be by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

It was not known last night whether Mrs. Roosevelt will attend this formal opening session. President Roosevelt has been obliged to decline, but Mrs. Roosevelt, it is understood, will attend one of the sessions of the Congress, and it may be tonight.

A concert by the United States Marine Band Orchestra will precede the session for a half hour. Among the numbers to be played is the "March Franklin D. Roosevelt," written by Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin.

Will Welcome Delegates.

At the first session in Constitution Hall today at 10 a. m. a welcome to the national officers and delegates from the District of Columbia will be given by Capt. Howard F. Clark, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia. During the morning a delegation of tiny members of the C. A. R. will visit the congress to bring their good wishes and a floral tribute to Mrs. Magna. These C. A. R. delegates will be dressed in colonial costume and will form a picturesque feature of the morning program.

An impressive part of the program will be the recital in unison of "The American's Creed," led by William Tyler Page, its author. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, will speak at this session.

The afternoon session today will be devoted to the greetings from the honorary presidents general, Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, of Connecticut; Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, of Cincinnati; Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Connecticut; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Kansas. Then will follow the annual reports of the national officers.

Service at Cathedral.

At 5 p. m. the congress will participate in a special patriotic service in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral, when the D. A. R. national banner will be presented to the cathedral. Mrs. Magna and her national board of management and the delegates to the congress will be present at the ceremony, and Mrs. Magna will personally present the D. A. R. banner. Bishop Freeman will receive the banner in behalf of the cathedral and will also make an address.

Every train which arrived in Washington yesterday brought groups of delegates from other States.

The hotel corridors and parlors were filled with the delegations last night, and it was reported that practically all accommodations in hotels had been reserved by midnight. Peacock Alley, in the New Willard Hotel, which is a historic gathering ground of the D. A. R., resembled a D. A. R. convention itself last night, with the delegates wearing the badges of their order on their new spring costumes and welcoming each other and old friends in the surging crowd.

Mild Electioneering.

Electioneering of a mild sort was visible here and there in the throngs, but as there are no national elections other than the election of 7 vice presidents general and two honorary vice presidents general to engross the political activities of the delegates the usual election excitement was absent.

As usual, differences of opinion among the delegates on vital issues of the day are apparent.

There is some comment as to whether this congress will support the announced stand of Mrs. Magna and her associates on the National Board of Management in avoiding political and controversial issues of all kinds in the deliberations of the week. In recent administrations of the D. A. R. a pronounced stand in the matter of national defense, anti-Communism and radical propaganda of all kinds has brought the society away somewhat from its historic position of not permitting political issues to be aired in its congresses and not permitting any affiliation with other groups no matter how praiseworthy their motives and activities.

May Settle Question.

D. A. R. delegations have appeared before Congressional hearings on behalf of national defense and through the operations of the National Defense Committee, with branches in every State, a decided drive against Communism and radicalism has been maintained. The present administration, of course, has reiterated the society's stand for 100 per cent Americanism, adequate national defense on land, sea and air and a constructive, positive program for fighting Communism and radical propaganda. But the form of its future activities along these lines may be brought before this present congress for decision.

Peru to Combine All Defense Arms

Gen. Benavides Expected to Be Named Land, Sea and Air Director.

Lima, Peru, April 16 (A.P.).—A governmental decree today ordered that Peruvian land, air and sea forces be placed under the command of a single general.

While the name of the future commander was not given, it was assumed that Gen. Oscar Benavides, former provisional president of Peru, who once was charged with participating in a subversive plot, will be Peru's generalissimo. Gen. Benavides is the only one in Peru holding the title of division general.

Meanwhile, following the resignation Friday night of the cabinet headed by Dr. Jose Matias Manzanilla, the formation of a new government was expected momentarily. The ministers of war, marine and finance insisted that their resignations be accepted, although it appeared likely that Dr. Manzanilla would head the new cabinet.

KINDLER CONDUCTS COOLIDGE PROGRAM

Miniature Symphony Gives Brief Survey of Musical Literature.

Not as an anticlimax to the recently closed symphony season, but rather as a tantalizer for the coming one, Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge presented a miniature symphony concert with 27 picked men of the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon in the manorial auditorium of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The program, under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler, was a brief survey of musical literature, with numbers arranged from the seventeenth century composers down to the yet-living Respighi.

Of Especial Interest.

Of especial interest to music lovers was this arrangement, which demonstrated the development of chamber-orchestral music from the time of Vivaldi, Bach and Corelli, through the period of Gluck, Schubert and Wagner, down to the present.

The "Adagio" of Vivaldi opened the program, its slow but impressive movement being followed by Bach's "Suite in B Minor" for flute and strings. Dominick Iascone was heard to great advantage in grave, bouree, polonaise, and gigue selections of the suite against the entire string section.

The quietude and peace of Corelli's "Pastorale," the sprightly rustic dance, "Musette," of Gluck, and the "Deutsche Taenze" of Schubert composed the orchestra's third number.

"Siegfried-Idyll" Played.

As no Kindler concert would be complete without the maestro's justly well-beloved Wagner, the beautiful "Siegfried-Idyll" of that composer was the next number, representing the musical development of the nineteenth century.

Perhaps the really outstanding piece of the entire program was Respighi's "Trittico Botticelliano," still in manuscript and dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge. In "La Primavera," "L'Adorazione dei Magi" "La Nascita di Venere" the composer translated into music the spirit of the renowned triptych of the Florentine painter, Botticelli.

No less praiseworthy than the formal program were the two encores which Dr. Kindler and his men offered following the last number: "Flight of the Bumble Bee" (Rimsky-Korsakoff) and "Preludium" (Jarnefelt).

AKRON HUNT'S END SET FOR WEDNESDAY

the Akron disaster tomorrow at the navy yard here.

The inquiry court, which has been holding sessions at the Lakehurst, N. J., base of the Akron before its crash, concluded its work there Saturday. Investigation was made not only into the larger airship's fall, but also the wrecking of the blimp J-3 off Beach Haven, N. J., while searching for survivors of the Akron.

Admiral Pratt's statement last night was taken to mean that unless the search uncovers more of the wreckage before Wednesday, the bodies which have not been recovered of the 73 who died in the Akron's plunge will remain in their watery grave.

Although official statements were lacking, it was assumed here that if the bodies of the men remained in the sea a solemn funeral ceremony would be held over the spot where the greatest airship tragedy in history occurred.

FACTOR SEEKS GANG AID IN KIDNAP HUNT

Wants Police to "Ease Up" as He Negotiates for Return of Son.

Chicago, April 16 (A.P.).—John "Jake the Barber" Factor tonight was reported to have appealed to the craft and power of the underworld to assist him in efforts to secure the return of his kidnaped son, Jerome, 17.

Reporters stationed at the hotel suite where the internationally known speculator was in seclusion, said that Factor and his associates conferred with Murray Humphries and Joe Fusco, titular heads of the Capone gang, apparently seeking their aid to contact the abductors.

Meanwhile, police said they had been asked to "ease up" on activities while attempts were made to negotiate with the kidnapers. Factor, they said, was fearful that harm might befall the youth.

Previous Kidnaping Balked.

Police said that Factor—distraught over his son's abduction—was near a nervous breakdown.

"Why did they grab the boy," they quoted him as saying. "Two years ago they wanted me—why not now? Why the boy? I can't understand it."

He referred, Detective Lieut. Dan Gilbert said, to an attempt to kidnap himself which was frustrated.

The extortionists, detectives said, expected to ask at least $500,000 ransom for Factor and when intimations of the plan came to him, he went directly to Al Capone.

The gang leader, the officer said, summoned the plotters to his headquarters and ordered them to "lay off Jake Factor—or else. * * *"

Jerome, a Northwestern University student, was kidnaped Wednesday night and Factor said $100,000 in ransom had been asked, a sum he said he was unable to pay.

Ransom Demand Rises.

Two ransom notes were received since the youth was spirited away from his South Side home, where he lived with his mother, Factor's first wife.

The first asked $50,000 ransom and the second communication raised the demand to $100,000.

The kidnaped youth was described by the father as "the studious kind and quite a debater." Jerome—a millionaire in his own right because of a trust fund established for him by Factor—was a junior at the university.

Nuns' Relief Work Lauded by Prelate

Auxiliary Bishop Speaker at Home of Little Sisters of Poor.

The charitable accomplishments of the Little Sisters of the Poor were extolled by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, during an address yesterday in celebration of the installation of electric lights in the home.

In praise of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, supporting the home, Bishop McNamara said: "It is acts of this kind which the world needs most to lift it from its present condition." He announced that a celebration would be held tomorrow at the home in honor of Sister Bertha, who has been a member of the order for 60 years.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the many persons sending flowers for the occasion, was thanked in the address by the bishop.

All "Loyal" Postmasters Will Be Kept, Farley Says

Deals Blow to Spoils System in Assuring Several Thousand Republican Incumbents They Will Serve Out Terms; Vacancies Number 2,500.

(Associated Press.)

Notice was given job-hungry Democrats yesterday by Postmaster General Farley that efficient Republican postmasters will not be supplanted until their terms have expired.

Turning his back on the policy of "to the victors belongs the spoils," Farley said the party long had nurtured the civil service systems of competitive examinations and declared "this administration will not abondon that high ground."

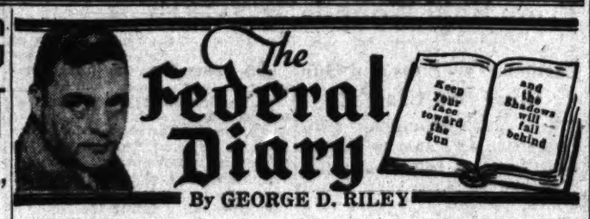
To several thousand Republican postmasters still in office and to many times that number of Democrats who want the jobs, Farley gave this message in a formal statement:

"No incumbent, whose terms has not yet expired and who has been rendering loyal and efficient service to the Government, need have the slightest fear of removal. It will be the policy of the Postoffice Department to allow every efficient postmaster to fill out his term."

Farley, who also is the administration's patronage dispenser, has not announced the party's policy as to other Federal offices such as district attorneys, marshals and collectors. These positions are not under civil service.

In the next few days the machinery for naming postmasters, nevertheless, is expected to be thrown into high gear. There are approximately 2,500 vacancies to be filled immediately out of a total of 15,032 positions.

The Federal Diary



By GEORGE D. RILEY

"HAVE you heard any complaints on the prices charged in Government building cafeterias?" the Federal Dairy was asked. The questioner had just dined in the Mall Cafeteria and had bought food totaling 45 cents. Here is what he had selected: A lamb chop, green peas, coffee, pie and bread.

The question was asked with the thought in mind that reduced pay called for reduced cafeteria prices. We had heard of no other complaints, but promised to ask Capt. Hoover. Here is what he told us:

The Government employes want everything else cut, because they have been cut.

A 25-cent special lunch is served to include a meat, two vegetables, beverage, bread and butter.

Butter was 2 cents. It is 1 cent now.

Most sandwiches are 5 cents.

Prices are down 30 per cent.

Most vegetables are 5 cents. Some are 8 and some 10, depending upon what is in season.

One lamb chop is an order unless the chop is small.

Meat orders will range from 15 to 18 cents.

The five cafeterias—Commerce, Interior, Internal Revenue, Mall and War—Eighteenth and D streets, are profit-sharing. Part of the profits go to welfare work in the departments. The balance, half to the Government and half is spent for expansion and replacements.

George L. Hossfield, Rutherford, N. J., who claims to be the speediest typist in the world, is, likewise, an ardent stamp collector. Yesterday, Mr. Hossfield called on Michael L. Eidsness, jr., superintendent of the stamp division of the Postoffice Department, and also visited the Philatelic Agency. His collection of stamps was minus a number of the recent commemorative issues and he desired to obtain the missing ones to complete his series of special stamps.

While at the Philatelic Agency, Hossfield offered some valuable suggestions for speeding up the handling of mail received from stamp collectors all over the country requesting special issues of stamps. Mr. Eidsness adopted the plan outlined. It was also suggested by the superintendent of stamps that this speeding up system might be used with very good results by Postmaster General Farley in handling the flood of correspondence that reaches his office from Congress and from philatelists requesting special issues of stamps to commemorate some local or national event in the history of the country.

Hossfield has one of the most complete collections of United States and foreign stamps.

"Only a Lonesome Pup."

Only a lonesome little pup, bedraggled and forlorn, exposed to bitter winds and rains, his coat all scratched and torn. Hovering near the traffic, he watches folks pass by. But most of the crowd ignores the pup with the wistful gleam in his eye.

At any friendly whistle his body quivers with mirth. One of God's little creatures with never a home on earth. He huddles in a corner for shelter from the storm, and as he sleeps he dreams of a land where doggies are always warm.

He doesn't possess a pedigree; he has fought all his battles alone, but he'd trade undying fidelity for a pat on the head—or a bone. Only a lonesome little pup—but he'd be a source of joy if some one would only take him home to some little girl or boy.—W. Anthony Thorne, 217 Lincoln avenue, Riverdale, Md., U. S. D. A. DESIRE to continue his life work and assist in completion of the Index-Catalogue of Medical and Veterinary Zoology, which parasitologists united in declaring to be indispensable to progress in their field, is drawing Dr. Albert Hassall, former assistant chief of the zoological division, Animal Industry, Agriculture, back to his laboratory in spite of his retirement.

Dr. Hassall is an illustration of the not uncommon type of Government worker who works for the love of the work and not just for the salary.

He comes to Washington from his home in Bowie, Md., 20 miles, twice weekly, to work in the laboratory. He receives no pay and he defrays his own expenses back and forth.

Born in England in 1862, Dr. Hassall was graduated from London Veterinary College in 1887.

UNIQUE PHOTOGRAPH COLLECTION ARRIVES

Mlle. Bonney to Show Her "Gay Nineties" Rarities at Sulgrave Club.

Vivid memories of the Gay Nineties will be revived in Washington this week through the presentation at the Sulgrave Club of the famous Bonney collection of photographs of that period.

The collection, assembled by Mlle. Therese Bonney, of Paris, is world-renowned and has been exhibited in many countries, a remarkable series of photographs which depict the life, celebrities, customs and manners of a few decades ago.

The collection is to be shown in the ballroom of the Sulgrave Club daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. and tickets for the exhibition may be obtained either from Miss Mabel T. Boardman, 1801 F street northwest, other members of the committee or at the door. On the committee with Miss Boardman are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien.

The exhibit will begin tomorrow and last until Saturday. Mlle. Bonney arrived in Washington yesterday and will remain here throughout the exhibition so those visiting it will have the advantage of her thorough knowledge of each picture. In this unique collection are more than 20,000 photographs.

Twenty European countries are represented in the collection, and there is hardly a phase of the period not represented in the series. It amounts to what is, in fact, a study of the social customs of the Edwardian period. The pictures of royalties form a unique unit of the collection, including young Manuel, of Portugal, in his "Gaby Days;" King George and Queen Mary in all their coronation regalia, the late Czar of Russia and his unfortunate children, the former kaiser on his yacht at Kiel, queens and kings at play and in state, a pictoral Gotha of by-gone days.

Colored Eastern Star Will Sponsor Exhibit

"Washington on Parade," an exhibit under auspices of Acacia Grand Lodge and the Order of Eastern Star, colored Masons, to be held during the week of May 22, has obtained gratifying cooperation of merchants throughout the city, Grand Master George Ambler announced yesterday, in development of features to be shown in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple during that period.

The exhibits will range from costume, furniture and home equipment displays to presentations by theatrical institutions. Various community bands will contest during the week's program.

A TRIBUTE TO A GREAT ARTIST

LOEW'S FOX THEATER was the scene of such a demonstration last Saturday night. The screen feature, LIONEL BARRYMORE in "LOOKING FORWARD," was just beginning. The audience of 4,000 clamored for another tune from ISHAM JONES AND HIS ORCHESTRA, including BEN ALLEY and Aileen Clark. Nor were they disappointed, for ISHAM JONES gave them everything they wanted. What a show it is! Besides ISHAM JONES AND HIS ORCHESTRA there's Weist and Stanton, a comedy dance team . . . France and LaPell, aerialists supreme, and as an extra added attraction AL TRAHAN, the "American Paderoughski." And of course on the screen is LIONEL BARRYMORE in "LOOKING FORWARD." Now playing.

"The show place of the Nation's Capital"

Thank You Mr. President

Just recently President Roosevelt sent a special message to Congress recommending legislation to supervise traffic in investment securities in interstate commerce. His message read:

"There is an obligation upon us to insist that every new issue of securities to be sold in interstate commerce shall be accompanied by full publicity and information, and that no essentially important element attending the issues shall be concealed from the buying public.

"This proposal adds to the ancient rule of caveat emptor the further doctrine 'let the seller also beware.' It puts the burden of telling the truth on the seller. It should give impetus to honest dealing in securities and bring back public confidence."

The Better Business Bureau of Washington heartily applauds this message. These words express the theory upon which the Bureau's program for civic protection is founded.

Cherry Blossoms Dejected in Rain

Motorists Come From Far and Near, Despite Drab Weather.

(Associated Press.)

As appropriate Easter Sunday decorations, the famous cherry blossoms yesterday gave way to the luxuriant line of weeping willows along the winding Potomac River's channel.

The single cherry blossoms around the Todal Basin merely managed a russet blush as reminder of last Sunday's full-blooming beauty.

The double cherry blossoms around Hains Point behaved better, but many of them were in the subdeb stage—not quite out yet.

In spite of the blossoms' scarcity, many autos from distant States were seen on the Speedway and around the Tidal Basin.

Parked in front of Lincoln Memorial for a rainy-day visit to the Statue of Lincoln at 2 p. m. were cars from New Jersey, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and New York. In fact the only local licenses were carried by a sightseeing bus.

Even more States were represented in the car circle about Washington Monument.

The traffic policemen reported the flow of cars "just normal."

NEW TRIAL MOTION FOR BALL UP TODAY

Defense Will Advance Many Grounds in Case of Former Treasurer.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arguments on a motion for a new trial of former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball will be heard today at the opening of the April term of the Circuit Court of Arlington County before Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

Ball was convicted April 1 on a charge of failure to turn over county funds totaling $518,959. He was given a sentence of two and a half years in the State penitentiary. Defense counsel, Frank L. Ball, brother of the former treasurer, and Capt. Crandal Mackey, when verdict was rendered, moved for a new trial. The time for argument was continued by the court until today to give counsel opportunity to prepare.

Counsel will present many grounds, the principal ones being:

That the time ascertained by the jury is uncertain and impossible of ascertainment; that the matters alleged do not constitute a crime, and that the court had no power to order the treasurer to turn over the money in his posession to the clerk of the court at the time of the treasurer's resignation, the law requiring the outgoing treasurer to turn the money over to his successor.

That the indictment alleges the offense to have occurred on February 26, 1932, showing Ball to be the treasurer at that time, when actually his resignation took place before that time; that the court erred in refusing to withdraw a juror after a letter written by State Auditor of Public Accounts T. Coleman Andrews and allegedly prejudicial to the defendant was accidentally shown the jury with some other papers; that the court erred in permitting Assistant Attorney General Collins Denny, jr., to appear for the Commonwealth.

"I Give Up"

Carolinian Convinces Montgomery Police He Took Employer's Cash.

Sergt. Earl H. Burdine, of Montgomery County Police Headquarters, received the shock of his life when M. A. Fortenberry, of Selby, N. C., walked into the headquarters and announced that he wanted to be locked up on a charge of larceny. The man said he was wanted in Selby, N. C., but that the police there didn't know it yet.

When he recovered his equilibrium, Sergt. Burdine sought the details. According to Fortenberry, he had taken a load of hogs belonging to his employer, R. B. Costner, of Selby, to Danville, Va., where he sold the porkers and parked the truck near the railroad station. He then proceeded to go on a spree, Fortenberry said, which lasted until the money ran out.

Chief of Police J. H. Marten, of Danville, replied to a telegram that the truck really was there and Chief S. M. Posten, of Selby, reported that Fortenberry was missing. Fortenberry said he would return without extradition proceedings to Selby for trial.

Health Program Held in St. Marys

Many Are Treated During Week by Cardinal Gibbons Institute Clinics.

Victor H. Daniel, principal of the Cardinal Gibbons Institute at Ridge, Md., yesterday announced the satisfactory completion of a health-week program extending throughout St. Mary's County, in which more than 100 children were immunized from diphtheria and twice that number given dental treatment. In addition, 30 adults and 25 children were treated for tubercular cases and 28 persons given instruction in prenatal clinics.

The institute, observing its ninth anniversary, has graduated 32 students, 5 of whom are attending college and 2 of whom have returned to the institute to teach, one having concluded her work at Tuskegee and the other at Hampton Institute. They represent the first colored graduates of an institution of high school grade in St. Mary's County to be employed within the county.

Another graduate of the institute, Blanche Biscoe, has returned there to teach music, after completing courses in the Pius IX School of Liturgical Music of New York. The health program of the institute, first undertaken nine years ago, has grown from 84 families to approximately 1,000 families, in both St. Marys and Montgomery Counties. Commencement at the institute will be held May 21.

CAR-TROLLEY CRASH INJURES THREE BOYS

Victims Live in Falls Church; Sedan Is Demolished; Two Are Not Hurt.

Struck by a speeding interurban trolley car at Vanderwerken Station near Falls Church, Va., a light sedan was demolished yesterday afternoon and three of the five youths occupying it were injured.

Lee Kearns, 18, of Falls Church, driver of the automobile, was the most seriously injured. He suffered internal injuries and severe shock. All of the injured were taken to Georgetown University Hospital by passing motorists. The other four auto passengers also live in Falls Church.

David Crumbaugh, 17, was pinned beneath the wreckage. He suffered severe scalp lacerations. William Robertson, 18, received a cut elbow. John Crumbaugh, 19, and Raymond Trumble, 20, were unscathed.

PARTY CLUB SEEKS ARLINGTON POWER

Democrats Call Session to Adopt Its Permanent Constitution.

The Democratic Club of Arlington County will hold a meeting of its full membership next Monday night in the Moose Hall at Clarendon.

The most important business to come before the meeting will be the adoption of a permanent constitution. A committee consisting of Charles R. Penwick, chairman; R. Blakley James and A. M. Jones, submitted a proposed draft to the executive committee March 27. After considerable discussion the draft, with minor exceptions, was adopted. It is thought that the most controversial portion will be section 2, article 2, which reads:

"In its activities it shall be restricted (a) to sponsoring candidates who have declared themselves subject to the Democratic primary; (b) to a cnadidate duly nominated by the Democratic primary; (c) to a candidate in the national election running subject to the Democratic national convention; (d) a candidate who has been nominated by said convention."

Exception Provided.

The above provision is subject to the following exception:

The club shall not sponsor any candidate running for office in Arlington County prior to the determining of the Democratic primary for that office, unless the duly authorized county Democratic committee has failed to order a primary for that office. Upon the committee failing to order such a primary, the club may sponsor any Democratic candidate running for office.

Should the club as a whole adopt this provision it is expected because of the club's influence that it will have a far-reaching effect in Arlington County politics.

Poll Tax Paying Urged.

Under these provisions it is said the club would select its candidates for governor and United States senator in August next, from those who have declared themselves subject to the Democratic primary, and as far as local officers are concerned would practically force the calling of a primary.

The officers of the club urge the voters of the county to be sure to pay their poll taxes on the required date in May, it being pointed out that the extent of the county's representation in the next State convention will depend upon the size of the gubernatorial vote next November. It is the desire of the club that Arlington County, now with the second largest representation, will exceed all other counties and cities in the Eighth Congressional District at the next State-wide caucus.

X-Rays Today to Bare Fate Of Dog Wounded by Sniper

Every Effort Will Be Made to Save Life of Fritz; Telephone Calls Pour in All Day at Cash Residence.

Fritz, the much-talked-of victim of an unidentified sniper, which lies, suffering, in the basement of his master's home at 4530 Ninth street northwest, will be given the best of medical attention and no effort will be spared to save his life.

Mrs. Herbert W. Elmore, president of the Washington Humane Society, yesterday visited the home of 2-year-old Teddy Cash, jr., to see the dog. She took a great deal of interest in Teddy's canine friend and called in Dr. E. S. Mullins, of 2130 P street northwest, well known veterinarian.

Some time this morning a private ambulance will take the dog to the offices of Dr. Casimir Leibell, in the Medical Science Building, where X-rays will be taken to determine whether there is a bullet lodged near the spine or if the spine is materially injured.

Dr. Mullins said last night the pictures will reveal whether the dog will live.

All day yesterday young Teddy visited his friend in the basement and tried to interest him in his Easter presents. Constant attention on the part of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cash has eased the dog's suffering and last night he was resting more comfortly than he has since he was shot.

The Cash residence yesterday received telephone calls from kindly Washingtonians all day long, inquiring as to the condition of the dog. Among those who called in person was Dr. R. R. Ashworth, of 3533 Hertford street northwest, prominent veterinarian.

The dog was shot Friday afternoon in front of the Cash home while it was tagging along behind young Teddy who was riding on his tricycle. A shot rang out and the dog fell.

Investigation by police could not reveal any clews as to the identity of the person who fired the shot. It was learned, however, that some one attempted to poison Fritz several weeks ago.

According to the report of State Auditor Andrews, the alleged shortage of Hallock is $6,250.

The grand jury sitting at the present session consists of Frederick E. Mann, Louis C. Carl, H. L. Wilson, J. C. Hare, W. E. A. McShea, Theodore B. Nickson, Harris Levy and S. Broome Eareskson.

Among other guests expected will be Gov. Ed R. Johnson, of the Fifty-sixth District of Rotary International, and Hubert Holloway, vice president of the American Automobile Association. The meeting will be attended by representatives of the five clubs mentioned and each club will have special guests.

STEEL TO REPLACE NORTH BEACH WALL

Heavy Seas Have Damaged Protective Bulwark at Maryland Resort.

At a special meeting of the town council of North Beach, Md., Saturday night it was officially announced that the Maryland State Roads Commission has completed plans to build a new steel sheep piling bulkhead to replace the present seawall, which has been badly damaged by heavy seas during the past year.

The new bulkhead will be built along the shore of Bay avenue from the south side of First street to the north side of Third street. It will be approximately 800 feet long and will average 1 foot higher than the seawall. A substantial guard rail will extend its full length for safety and at each intersecting street concrete steps will lead to the water for the convenience of bathers.

John B. Gray, jr., counsel for the town, was highly praised by Mayor Michael J. Lane and the town council for his efforts in bringing about this improvement. The cooperation of State Senator Joseph C. Webster, Assemblymen John Wright Williams, Owen S. Jones and Thomas J. Younger of the Democratic State central committee, all of Calvert County, was the subject of a commendatory resolution.

WELCOME TO THE D. A. R.

Washington again welcomes the Daughters of the American Revolution, who are gathering this week for their annual congress. The National Capital is beautifully adorned in spring raiment, and sweeping changes in government have brought here many important men and women from all parts of the country to mingle with those in office. The ladies of the D. A. R. will find here a charming setting for the exchange of views with national leaders on many new and far-reaching questions whose solution calls for the insight and patriotism of American women.

The President-General, Mrs. Russell William Magna, sounds a national keynote when she announces that the D. A. R. assembles "to assist the United States Government, instead of seeking to dictate to that Government." This policy, which is disregarded by organizations representing special interests, is a fitting foundation-stone for the building of national solidarity among public-spirited American women.

The primary purpose of the D. A. R. is the promotion of patriotic education. In order to accomplish this purpose it is necessary for the members to learn before they can teach. They have diligently applied themselves to the task, and as the membership increases the beneficial influence of the society extends throughout the country. The D. A. R. holds fast to the ancient landmarks of the American Republic, and applies to each new problem as it arises the touchstone of Americanism. Consequently the society resists the pollution of American blood by criminal, Communist, or unassimilable immigration. It resists the pollution of American loyalty by importations of Communist heresies. It opposes comradeship with enemies of the United States, however cunning the disguise of these enemies, and it spurns the bribery that offers trade as a means of entering the temple erected by Washington and guarded by Roosevelt. The mercenaries who would exchange American inviolability for a mess of Soviet pottage have no sympathizers among the women of the D. A. R.

American inviolability is a myth unless supported by the organized and adequate naval and military power of the American people. The women of this nation, who furnish its defenders, will not cease their demand that these defenders shall not be slaughtered by neglect of preparation for the ultimate test of battle by sea, land, and air. The D. A. R. supports the upbuilding of the United States Navy; the vigilant maintenance of efficiency in the Army; and the expansion of air defenses to the point of unquestioned adequacy. The spirit of the pioneer, which President Roosevelt invokes, is the rich inheritance of American women. They dare to go forth and build waste places, to guard the hearth, to buckle the sword upon their defenders, and to keep the family safe while their men are keeping the country free.

PARING SCHOOL BUDGETS.

Despite strenuous efforts of educators and public administrators everywhere to avoid transmitting the consequences of the depression to future generations, school budgets are suffering dangerous curtailments in many sections of the country. A recent survey of educational budgets in some 3,000 American cities discloses that salary reductions, shorter school terms, fewer text books, and crowded classes are becoming the rule. The survey was made by the Office of Education, Department of the Interior. It covered random cities having 2,500 or more population.

Wage reductions for teachers have been general. In many cases they appear to have been far out of line with the necessities of the situation. The report reveals that in some instances teachers' salaries for the next school year will amount to but 40 per cent of the 1932 scale. A wage reduction of 60 per cent obviously can not be accomplished without working lasting deterioration upon a public school system. Happily such extremes are rare. More often than not they flow directly from bad city management. In Chicago, for example, school salaries in arrears now aggregate the amazing sum of $58,000,000, even after sharp reductions in the budget. But it would be impossible to cite in the entire world a city whose public finances have been more shamefully mismanaged and corrupted during the last five years. For this the next generation will pay sorely.

But bad management is not the whole answer to the widespread curtailment of school budgets. The Office of Education says that more than half the reporting cities contemplate increasing the number of pupils per teacher next year. For the surveyed cities as a whole, the report estimates, there will be a decrease of 2.4 per cent in the number of teachers and a concurrent increase of 1.3 per cent in combined enrollment. No less than 91 cities have announced shorter school terms. From other sources it is reported that three States already have clipped from one to two months from the 1933 school calendar. The Federal survey also reveals that text books purchases were curtailed by 16.8 per cent in the last school year.

The decrease in capital outlay during the last two years was 57.6 per cent. Partly as a result of this curtailment in the building program, no less than 107,000 children were found on part-time schedules. Over 59,000 pupils were found housed in temporary portable structures. Postponement of all repairs and maintenance is reported from approximately one-fourth of the cities.

THE ARMS EMBARGO.

Honorable men in Congress are opposing the resolution which would empower the President to apply an embargo upon arms in certain contingencies, at his discretion. They hesitate to grant this power, fearing that its misuse would exasperate other nations and possibly lead to war.

The reasons why this power should be granted are unanswerable. The United States is endeavoring to promote world peace. It is doing so with the unanimous approval of the people. It can act only through the President. Within the scope of his authority to conduct foreign relations he is entitled to all the power that can be conferred upon him. Congress has repeatedly attempted to interfere with the Executive in dealing with foreign nations, and invariably it has blundered because of its ignorance of the factors involved and of the purpose of the Executive. This purpose can not always be revealed, nor can the President expose all the factors that cause him to adopt a certain course.

At a time when the President is working for peace by co-operation with all nations, always reserving independence of policy and action, the United States is in the absurd position of promoting human slaughter in several parts of the world because it does not prevent the unrestricted sale of war material to any war conspirator who cares to purchase it. The will of the people as exercised through the President is frustrated by the failure of Congress to provide him the means of executing national policy.

The fear of legislators that the President may misuse the embargo power does little credit to their intelligence. He already possesses vastly greater powers, the misuse of which could plunge the nation into war. If legislators mistrust the President, why do they rest easy while he wields these great powers? They should hasten to strip him of his authority, and exercise it themselves.

Conscientious as these objectors may be, their opposition to the embargo resolution is as unsound as if it were inspired by cowardice and greed. Cowards who would have the United States cringe when treaties are violated are opposed to the embargo resolution. Mercenaries who would sell the honor of the United States for a fat consignment of munitions are of course opposed to the resolution. Americans in the mass, who have placed Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House to safeguard the United States, are willing to trust him in the conduct of relations with foreign nations. They place the responsibility upon him, and their good sense tells them that he can not be denied the power to discharge his responsibilities.

PROTECTING THE INVESTOR.

Congressional committees encounter no little difficulty in shaping a bill to protect investors against worthless securities. There is a general desire to set up a barrier against the flotation of stocks and bonds by fraudulent means or through misrepresentation. The experience of recent years indicates an urgent need for such safeguards. Yet Congress does not wish to throttle legitimate enterprises or set up a financial dictator in Washington. The problem of accomplishing this worthy objective without incurring the dangers of bureaucratic domination of business is extremely difficult.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee has accentuated the complexity of the issue by reporting favorably a bill by Senator Johnson to fasten a rigid censorship upon all foreign bond issues. This measure would create a foreign securities board composed of the Secretaries of State and Commerce and the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board. It would be the duty of the board to obtain complete information concerning any proposed foreign issue. Such information would include the methods to be used for repayment of the loan, the financial condition of the borrowing country, its trade position and political stability, the security offered, the relationship of borrowing country to the United States, and any other pertinent circumstances. The board would then be called upon to decide whether or not flotation of the proposed bond issue would be advisable.

The bill clearly provides that a permit to issue securities would not constitute a guarantee of their soundness by the American Government. But it is difficult, under the circumstances, to see how the Government could escape moral responsibility if securities so approved should later go into default. Investors would be inclined to suspend investigations of their own and to rely upon the judgment of the distinguished Government officials assigned to this duty. Of course no board is infallible. Mistakes would doubtless be made, and then the Government would be severely abused for recommending unsound securities.

There seems to be no way in which the Government can substitute its own judgment for the judgment of the investor without acquiring moral responsibility for the outcome. Congress may go as far as it likes in forcing financiers to tell the whole truth about securities offered to the public, but when it attempts to substitute official judgment for the discretion of investors it enters upon dangerous ground.

RUMORS OF INFLATION.

The general advance on Thursday in foreign currencies against the dollar, which followed a new flood of reports of inflationary experiments under consideration on Capitol Hill, was the sharpest in many years, and the drive against the dollar did not subside until the New York Federal Reserve Bank licensed a considerable shipment of gold to Holland. The amount of bullion involved in this transaction has not been disclosed.

Rumors that inflationary proposals already command the tacit approval of President Roosevelt have not been confirmed. However, the wide fluctuations in the foreign exchange rates, and the sharp advances in commodity prices at home this week, encourage the apparently world-wide surmise that the drift toward inflation is gaining momentum in Washington.

Doubtless much of the uncertainty abroad flows from the fact that American monetary policy has not been clearly defined, or rather restated, since the proclamation of the gold embargo on March 6. It is not unnatural that uninformed circles abroad should assume that this failure to reaffirm unequivocal adherence to sound money portends a new currency policy. To some extent the same confusion rules at home. Quite naturally, in these circumstances, speculation runs first in the direction of inflation of some sort. The recent White House statement that immediate measures against further deflation are under consideration appeared to sharpen the anticipation of inflation.

The present uncertainty checks bank loans and discounts, makes future delivery contracts a gamble against legislative policy, further discourages international trade. All of these forces work in the same direction toward the further aggravation of the distressing deflation and economic stagnation which President Roosevelt is laboring so heroically to end.

Under the circumstances, a clear and unequivocal declaration of monetary policy well might be the next major step in the President's great program for economic recovery.

Nevada reports discovery of an immensely rich body of ore, but it will have to go some if it yields more than her divorce racket.

The skies will not be alone if they weep today, when childish hearts are set on rolling eggs on the White House lawn.

DEGRADING THE DOLLAR.

By ALEXANDER D. NOYES, in the New York Times.

The real purport of the proposals for the deliberate degradation of the dollar would hardly deserve discussion but for the fact that some serious minds appear to have been captured by the propaganda for it. The plan is to reduce by 50 per cent or more the gold content of the dollar, whereupon prices would forthwith advance to the pre-1930 level. It is a delightfully simple suggestion—something like going to sleep at night and waking up in 1929. It will doubtless be remarked that France and Italy and Belgium passed similar "devaluation laws" and that England is talking of it. But it may also be observed that, when the three Continental countries "devalued" their gold coins, they took such action only after prolonged and progressive depreciation of the currency had already fixed for it a greatly reduced valuation on the old gold basis. No country whose currency remained soundly lodged on a long-established gold standard has ever resorted to any such expedient.

What would happen if the United States were actually to try this strange experiment? One result would be certain; in the long run, it would cut in two the exchange-market valuation of our currency. This would amount to repudiating half of whatever indebtedness we owed to other countries, but it would make it proportionately easy for foreign markets to pay what they owed in America. Theoretically, the currency debasement should make it profitable for the outside world to buy our goods, and unprofitable for it to sell its own to us, or else should force up prices so as to neutralize the difference in exchange; but, unfortunately for the argument, England has tested the matter through the 35 per cent depreciation in sterling since September, 1931.

During the intervening period British prices have not advanced, British exports have not increased, and the decrease in British imports is entirely explainable by the newly erected tariff barriers. It would surely be an unpleasant experience if the United States were to engage in the experiment of thimble-rigging the currency standard, were to suffer the odium of having done it unnecessarily and were then to discover that none of the imagined advantages had accrued. But the whole discussion is distasteful.

There is double distilled worry brewing for the highball trade in the thought that Americans may become addicted to beer before repeal comes true.

The current movement may have shallow potency, but by all means call it Norris Shoals.

Quite a sizable group is now convinced that rough riding runs in the family.

JUST FOLKS

FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

Ah, well, I say full many a day
I've seen the big fish get away,
And once in a remembered spring
I'd several beauties on a string;
And then (I'm sure) to jar my pride,
Because a faulty knot I'd tied,
The tether slipped and off they swam,
Which proves possession's mostly sham.

But undiscouraged still I fish,
Rejoicing when I catch a dish,
And if my cast is short or long,
Or if the line I thought was strong
May break, still hopeful I return
New wisdom from the stream to learn,
Knowing that struggle as I may,
Sometimes a fish will get away.

Though loss and disappointment burn,
To life again I shall return,
And all my strength and will employ
To catch my share of passing joy.
If ill luck follows me awhile,
Good fortune soon again may smile;
Nor shall I long bewailing stay
The things of mine which get away.

I will not give my heart to gold
Or stuff, uncertain, hard to hold;
Or strings which break, or brittle rods,
'Gainst which there lie so many odds,
But I will lash my faith to joys
Which neither time nor chance destroys,
And seek from wisdom, day by day
Delights which can not get away.

The Man Who Serves You Best Is the One Afraid of Losing His Job.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YESTERDAY a merchant full of wrath and sorrow told me his troubles. He had caught his best clerk in the act of stealing and had fired him.

"The dirty sneak!" he growled. "I've trusted him with my money for years, and there's no telling how much he has knocked down. I'd send him to the chain gang if it wasn't for his family."

The merchant's voice was more significant than his words. It was bitter with rage and contempt.

This same merchant complains of high taxes, as all men do. He knows that his taxes are made higher by the grafting of public officials. He knows that dishonest officials who line their pockets at the taxpayer's expense are stealing from him precisely as his clerk did.

But he feels no contempt for them. As a matter of fact, he rather looks up to them. They are superior men because they hold public office.

His attitude, which is common to millions of voters, explains much of the corruption in public life.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a recent message to Congress, called attention to the ancient truth that men who handle other people's money are trustees acting for others.

But neither the bankers of whom he spoke nor public officials similarly trusted will regard themselves as public servants and trustees so long as the public maintains its present attitude of awed servility.

The ordinary man acts like a commoner before a king when he addresses a public servant, as he does when he asks for the privilege of paying his banker a profit.

Any common man elected to office at once becomes a superior being. If he deposits $50,000 a year while drawing a salary of $3,000, the voters who hired him feel neither wrath nor scorn. They still cheer him.

Can you imagine a merchant yelling at one of his clerks: "Hurrah for you!"

The public servant is a servant. He works for the voter and the voter pays his salary. Why should the boss feel inferior to his hireling?

Citizens of America must develop a new attitude if they hope to keep their servants honest. Laws won't do it. The man who handles your money will be tempted to take it so long as you act like an apologetic worm.

Weakness always invites abuse. You can't expect servants to respect you or your property if you treat them as though they were little tin gods.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Eugene Meyer, Public Servant.
Kansas City Times.

The resignation of Eugene Meyer as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board will mean a great loss to the public service. Mr. Meyer is an unusual combination of culture, wisdom and business ability. In his early 40s he had made a fortune. Then he determined to retire and devote himself to Government service. In an almost uninterrupted public career since 1917 he has been the trusted counselor of four Presidents.

His most notable achievements were with the War Finance Corporation, which furnished the model for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Land Banks, which he rescued from disorganization, and the Federal Reserve Board.

Smiles From the Treasury.
Kansas City Times.

Secretary Woodin of the Treasury is pictured as a gentleman of exceeding good humor, always cheerful and ready to please. These are most excellent qualities for a man in such a position, although it should be understood that they indicate nothing of a too readily yielding sort in Treasury policies. But to be able to smile and to supervise the Nation's finances at the same time is no small accomplishment for current days.

Welcome Change.
Chicago Tribune.

And the greatest relief about beer coming back is that it will give people something to talk about for a few days instead of moaning over their favorite bootlegger being in jail again.

British View of the Farm Bill.
London Economist.

The farm bill is described as an emergency measure, and it is to be terminated whenever the President proclaims that the "national economic emergency in relation to agriculture" has been ended. One may legitimately surmise, however, that if the bill succeeds in raising agricultural prices in the United States, the vested interests in its maintenance will be so strong as to insure that the "national economic emergency in relation to agriculture" will be everlasting. Nor would that be so complete a legal fiction as might appear, for if the American farmer is encouraged to believe that he can guarantee himself a fixed real income, regardless of what is happening in the rest of the community, merely by administrative manipulation of markets, then there will indeed be not only a national, but an international "economic emergency in relation to agriculture."

The Changing Picture.
Louisville Courier-Journal.

Washington feels a sense of loss in the withdrawal of two familiar figures from the scene of activities in the Capital. Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm von Prittwitz, for five years German Ambassador to the United States, is turning his steps back toward the home country, having resigned his post several weeks ago. Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, still remains at his desk in the Treasury Department, but his resignation has been received and he is apparently awaiting only the appointment of a successor before he leaves the Government service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Denounces Democrats for Supporting Plan to Guarantee "Reasonable Profit" to Farmers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the past four weeks the members of both Houses of Congress have responded so readily and solidly to the President's request for prompt action on remedial legislation that the country was taking heart and beginning to hope that the day of the radicals on the Hill was past, at least until the emergency had ended. In fact, confidence has been so much improved that commodity and security prices have advanced substantially and industry generally has been speeded up a bit during the last two weeks.

But a radical block of Democratic senators, a large number of whom are newcomers to the Senate, Thursday took a backward step and joined in the vote which passed the Simpson-Norris farm production cost plan. A more absurd and utterly ridiculous bill could not have been devised by a crowd of first-year high school boys, and those so-called Democratic members of the Senate who disregarded the wishes of the administration and joined with Senator Norris in voting for this monstrosity deserve to be read out of the party. At least the administration should withhold any patronage from these senators.

While there is little doubt but that the membership of the House will refuse to sponsor or favor any such wild scheme as that proposed and passed in the Senate, should it do so, the President will undoubtedly veto the measure and thereby retain the confidence of the American people in his great leadership.

But it is unfortunate that under our system of government men can be elected to such a high office as that of senator who will vote for such a measure as that sponsored by Mr. Simpson and Senator Norris.

To guarantee the farmer the cost of production, plus a "reasonable profit," would involve a problem so complex that no human brain could fathom it. Who could say, for instance, what is a "reasonable profit" to the farmer? And if some one felt capable of fixing such profit, no two farmers would agree to it. But even if this "reasonable profit" could be fixed to the satisfaction of everybody, then there would be such a migration from the cities, towns and hamlets to the farms that the surplus crops made in one year would be sufficient to supply the world for a generation, and require the entire revenue of the Federal Government to make good this guarantee.

We will all agree to any sane and reasonable legislation calculated to aid the farmer, but we should not go off on any and every foolish tangent submitted in the name of the farmer. There are millions of our citizens in as bad condition as the farmer, and through no fault of their own. Why, then, should our Government single out any one class and guarantee it a profit?

Here's hoping the House will exercise better judgment.

A VIRGINIAN.

Blood-Curdling Reports of Famine and Terrorism in Soviet Russia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gareth Jones, private secretary to David Lloyd George, is reported to have just reached Berlin after a long walking trip through the rural districts of Russia. He depicts a picture of famine on a huge scale and the revival of murderous terror. Millions are dying from hunger and others are being executed.

Undoubtedly a day will come when the world at large will know that under the reign of communism in Russia more than 20,000,000—up to date—have died from famine and execution.

At this very moment here in the United States an appeal is being made by a few weak-minded people for recognition of the Bolshevik government. They claim that this recognition will aid the United States on its way to recovery. These people are short-sighted or unscrupulous.

They do not know that at this time, when their appeal for recognition of Russia is being voiced, that Great Britain is fighting to alter her error of 1921, when she recognized Russia.

Probably they do not realize that communism in Russia could have been wiped out long ago had not Lloyd George—against the wishes of the majority of the British public—signed an economic agreement with Russia in 1921. By this act he gave the Bolsheviks strength and much needed moral credit in their own country, to gain the power they have today.

Let us hope that the United States Government will maintain its stand against communism. By nonrecognition the United States in time will win not only materially but morally, and will maintain the superiority and respect which it commands today.

Protests Against Statement That Officers of the Titanic Were Drunk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Of course, Mrs. Peabody has a right to be just as dry as she wishes, although I do not believe that she can resist the tide of liberalism now flowing so strongly toward the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But Mrs. Peabody has no right to make such a statement as is reported in your paper, namely, that the Titanic went down as a result of a drunken orgy of the officers. Such a statement is absolutely unwarranted and a careful study of the records of the investigation will so prove. It is shameful for her to traduce the memories of a brave and competent corps of men. Let us hope that no one in his senses will give such a statement credence.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE White House lawn will be the scene of two broadcasts today, weather permitting, when the annual Easter egg-rolling festivities are described over the networks. The first broadcast will be heard over WMAL at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and the second, over WJSV, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Several times during the day Mrs. Roosevelt plans to take Sistie and Buzzy Dall, her grandchildren, out on the lawn to join in the fun and it was indicated at the White House that if they are present during one of the broadcasts they will be permitted to speak a few words to the children who are listening-in.

The United States Marine Band, with Capt. Taylor Branson conducting, will play at intervals throughout the day and is expected to be heard during both broadcasts.

The opening session of the Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be the occasion for a special program over the WEAF network this morning.

The program will consist of an address to the congress by Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the National Society of the D. A. R., and will be broadcast over WRC at 11:30 a. m. The congress is being held in the D. A. R. Building here.

James A. Farley, Postmaster General of the United States and chairman of the Democratic national committee, will outline his program for "Postal Reorganization Under the New Deal" in a talk over WRC at 10:30 p m.

Farley will be heard as the third speaker in the "Cabinet Series" of the National Radio Forum.

Postmaster General Farley has proposed a postal economy program which, it is estimated, will save the Federal budget at least $100,000,000 annually. He will explain how this plan will be worked and what services will be eliminated without inconvenience to business. The speaker will talk also about Federal patronage, over which he has full control.

IT is a question in radio circles whether or not a comedian can stay on the air for too long a run. In the theater, decrease in attendance signals the time for a show to end its run, but on the air there is no visible check.

There are divided opinions. Some assert a good comedian always has a weekly following on the air because the audience is so large. Furthermore, the listeners may shift from week to week. If they tire they can tune in some other program for a while, and later, if the mood so decrees, return to the old favorite. There are others who contend a comedian destroys his own reputation as a humorist by too many radio performances.

So it may not be harmful to Eddie Cantor's radio popularity to sign off on April 23 until next September. He is going to Hollywood to make another film and will have a vacation before returning to the air. In the meantime Bert Lahr, of the stage, will clown in his stead.

Ed Wynn, who was so microphone shy when he went on the air last April that he wondered how he could possibly fill out the thirteen weeks stipulated in his original contract, rounds out a full year on the kilocycles on April 26. And he will continue for another thirteen weeks, at least.

A SERIES of operatic presentations of the masterpieces of grand opera, under the direction of Howard Barlow, will be inaugurated over a Nation-wide network tonight (WJSV, 9 o'clock). Known as Grand Opera Miniatures, the radio versions of the various operas will be presented with symphony orchestras, mixed chorus, and a cast of soloists, including Mary Eastman, soprano; Barbara Maurel, contralto; Theo Karle, tenor, and Evan Evans, baritone.

Barlow has chosen Verdi's beautiful "La Traviata" for the opening broadcast. The program will include high lights of the work ranging from the tuneful prelude to Act I, to the choral finale.

Jack Pearl, of the trio of top-notch radio comedians, will not leave the air until June 29. He, too, is likely to do a film before returning to the ether. At any rate he is considering several movie offers.

The popular waltz ballad "Spring Is in My Heart Again," by Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, will be Frank Parker's feature solo on the A. & P. Gypsies program over WRC at 9 p. m. Selections by the Gypsies under the baton of Harry Horlick will include "Frasquita" by Franz Lehar and the descriptive tone picture "In a Persian Market" by Ketelbey.

A demonstration of the new MacNeil "fog eye," which detects unseen icebergs, enemy ships or planes and concealed batteries of guns and which looks through fires, fog and smoke screens, will be broadcast over WJSV tonight.

The "fog eye" is the invention of Commander Paul H. MacNeil. Its uses are many and varied. Ships at sea will be warned of approaching enemy craft, whether on or under the sea or aloft. The "fog eye" will also "see" an iceberg or an uncharted reef. The delicate instrument is sensitive to any marked change of temperature and when an object causing such a change comes within its "vision," it will not delay in finding its exact location.

ADD to Stoopnagle and Budd's Little Known Men of Industry—the fellow who reads between the lines of newspapers, books and postcards. . . . Half-pint Jeannie Lang now is greeted as "3.2" . . . while Big Bill O'Neal, six-foot-seven Texas tenor on the same revue, answers to the tag, "Illegal." . . . Nat Shilkret made a rare return to his first instrument, the clarinet, to introduce his new composition, "Clarinet Quintet." . . . Film producers are trying to lure Jane Froman Hollywood-ward. . . . Betty Barthell begins the day with a canter in Central Park. . . . Emery Deutsch sets a new spring style with a stitched felt hat. . . . Howard Barlow relaxes on week-ends with many books before an open fireplace in Connecticut.

Irene Castle McLaughlin, whose interest in animal welfare is almost as celebrated now as was her dancing and fashion-setting a decade ago, will talk on "Kindness to Animals" over WMAL at 6:30 p. m. The talk will be a plea for widespread observance of Be Kind to Animals Week.

Woods Miller, barytone, a comparative newcomer to radio, will be featured in the new "Evening in Paris" musical series, which starts tonight, WJSV, at 9:30 o'clock.

ARTHUR DALY, production man on "Slow River," featuring Eva Taylor and the Southernaires, did not care particularly for a number listed on the program, jabbed his finger on the control room "mike" button, and rasped at Clarence Jones, accompanist:

"F'eaven's sake, Clarence, that tune sounds awfully slow and dead. It may be 'Harlem Strut' to you, but it's a dirge to me."

"Sho'," countered Clarence. "How's this?"

He broke into a fast and hot tune that left Daly with his toes tingling.

"Great," enthused the production man. "Now, what will we call it on the program?"

"Oh, jes de same," said Clarence, "'Harlem Strut.' It's mine."

Jones had merely played over the same number in much faster tempo, with a few trick accents.

GEHRIG'S HOMER FACTOR AS YANKS BEAT MACKS, 5-4

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

WITH SAMMY WEST making 9 hits in his last 10 times at bat for the Browns and Fred Schulte proving the big punch for the Nats, last winter's Washington-St. Louis deal seems to be satisfying everybody, including West and Schulte.

The Phillies beat the Dodgers, 2-1 Saturday, because a line drive skidded up Del Bissonette's arm and dropped safely. If I remember rightly, Joe Judge used to be pretty good on those hot line drives.

Odds quoted in New York on the pennant races yesterday make the Yankees 3 to 5 favorites. The Nats are 3 to 1, the Athletics 4½ to 1, and you can get anywhere from 7 to 1 to 10 to 1 on Cleveland.

Despite Kiki Cuyler's injury that will keep him out of the line-up until July, and despite the fact that the baseball writers' poll established the Pirates as the favorites, the Chicago Club is quoted at 9 to 5 in the National League, with Pittsburgh held at 3 to 1.

The baseball bookies were quoting 8 and 9 on the Yankee-Athletic game yesterday, which, in the parlance of the profession, means that they would lay 8 to 5 on the Yankees, but would take no less than 9 to 5 if they bet against the Yanks.

There are two classes of infielders. Those who shout "I got it" when they're catching pop flies, and those who say "I have it." Joe Kuhel is one of the "I got it" boys. After his marriage into society, Bucky Harris made no such grammatical errors.

The slugging Yankees have been outhit in three of their four games to date and got a tie in the number of hits in the other battle. But with the Yankees winning four straight, Manager McCarthy is making no strenuous objections.

With Patty Fothergill and Smead Jolley standing by for quick duty, the Red Sox are better equipped for pinch hitting duty than any club in the league. The only drawback is that the club has to carry a couple of pinch runners in case Jolley or Fothergill gets on base.

His assignment to right field was a promotion for Goose Goslin, who is now playing in close proximity to the 80-cent customers, while Manush, in Goslin's old berth in left, is performing before the 55-cent bleacher boys.

They say Babe Ruth hit his first home run to celebrate his wedding anniversary today. The home run event occurred last Saturday, but the Babe was fearful that yesterday's game would be rained out and today is an open date.

Reds Blank Cards As Lucas Is Star

St. Louis Gets but 2 Hits, With No Runner Advancing Past Third.

Cincinnati, April 16 (A.P.).—Cincinnati's Reds today humbled their old jinx, the St. Louis Cardinals, by winning their first game of the season, 7 to 0.

In a splendid pitching performance Red Lucas held the Cardinals to two hits, and only one man got as far as third. This was "Spark Plug" Adams, who reached first on Morrissey's fumble, went to second on a balk and took third on an infield out.

The Reds hammered Paul Derringer hard, every player except Lucas hitting safely. Two former Cards played a prominent part in the victory, Jim Bottomley scoring two runs and driving in another, while Hafey also scored one and drove in another.

Fans Divided On Irving, Van Bout

Northeast Boy's Win of Final Round Is Perplexing.

Both Survived After Near K. O.; Meet Tomorrow Night.

By DAVE HERMAN.

IN debating the merits of Young Van and Henry Irving, principals in Tuesday night's fistic card at Portner's Arena, followers of the manly art of scrambled ears, have been varying in their opinions as to which of the two scrappers will display the strongest finishing powers now that the battle will be waged over the ten-round route and providing it goes that far.

For Irving, the cagey "Popeye" from old Northeast, surprised his most ardent backers in their last melee by rallying sensationally in the closing three minutes after Van himself had staged a terrific comeback in the four previous rounds.

It was Irving who swept out to answer the opening bell in hurricane fashion, who piled up an advantage on points in the first three rounds, and had his opponent on the verge of sprawling to the canvas in the second, but it was the handsome Southwest pride who fought his way beautifully out of the wilderness of defeat, and with a smashing right cross floored Irving in the seventh round.

Rivals in Hard Workouts.

Ringside observers, including the third man in the squared circle, contended after the fight that fight that had Van finished with a blast of punching, or displayed any of the two-fisted firing he shot at Irving in the sixth and seventh, he probably would have carried off the decision.

As it turned out, Irving, realizing that defeat stared him square in the face, summoned to his aid all his cunning and ring dexterity, charged at Van in the eighth round bent on knocking him out, and it was this strong finish by the Northeast lad that forced the two judges and referee to turn a possible Van verdict into a unanimous draw.

So in attempting to dope out which fighter will outlast the other, bear in mind that it was Irving who carried the fight during the early rounds, Van who made a comeback, only to discover that the Irving of the first round had returned with some renewed vigor in the final heat.

Just what these two gladiators will do over a longer route remains to be seen Tuesday night. Neither Van nor Irving has ever stepped 10 rounds before; Van has had two 8-round fights, and Irving 3. In their many 6-round matches each has displayed knockout ability.

Both Van and Irving went through spirited workouts yesterday, and a light drill is the order today. Over in Frankie Mann's gym the Northeast Popeye sparred with Bob Lowry, Roy Manley and young Joe Green, and flashed plenty of speed and punching. Van, guided in his workouts by the popular Ray Bowen, scrapped with a couple of heavyweights at Mohawk gym.

While fans will be waiting wistfully for the Van-Irving match to be put on, they will be served up a delicious dish of preliminaries, spiced with boys well versed in the art of sock.

The ever-pleasing Nick Antonelli, who recenty dusted Jackie Lamar in one round at Portner's, comes to grips with Willie Essinger in the semiwind-up of six rounds. Both Antonelli and Essinger are well known for their exploits in local rings, and much interest is attached to their meeting.

In another six that savors of a slam-bang battle, Roy Manley takes on the clownish Jimmy Reed, Baltimore Harry Groves meets Jackie Simpson in a six, and Bob Lowry opens in a four against Whitey Graham.

Schmeling, Dempsey In Pittsburgh Tonight

New York, April 16 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling and Jack Dempsey left for Pittsburgh tonight to open their eight-city exhibition tour in the steel town tomorrow night.

The two former heavyweight champions were accompanied by Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager; Max Machon, Schmeling's trainer; Mushky Jackson, Jacob's assistant, and two sparring partners.

The program calls for Schmeling to box with his sparring partners while Jack Dempsey referees. The itinerary includes Boston, Montreal, Three Rivers, Quebec; Portland and Bangor, Me., and Reading, Pa.

Schmeling will move into his training camp at Lake Swannanoa, N. J., about May 1, to begin preparations for his fifteen-rounder with Max Baer at Yankee Stadium on June 8.

Sixth French Victory Predicted by Borotra

Biarritz, France, April 16 (U.P.).—Jean Borotra, veteran French tennis star, today predicted that France would make its sixth straight successful defense of the Davis Cup this summer.

The hero of the 1932 challenge round said Henri Cochet, the French ace, was in excellent form and would avenge his defeat by Ellsworth Vines at Forest Hills, if the United States team opposed France in the challenge round. He said Christian Boussus has a good chance to make the team.

"I'll play in the doubles, if I'm needed," he concluded, "but I'll not participate in the singles. They're too fatiguing."

Dodgers, Giants In 14-Round Tie

Teams Battle 14 Innings, Until Darkness Stops Play at 1-All.

Brooklyn, April 16 (A.P.).—The Dodgers and the Giants struggled through 14 innings to a 1-to-1 tie today in the first interborough battle of the National League season. Darkness kept them from going on to a decision that was not in sight when the game was called.

Carl Hubbell and Joe Shaute, rival southpaws, pitched effectively through the first 11 frames, eight yielding eight hits and one run. Luque and Bell, who followed Hubbell, and Van Mungo, Shaute's successor, did about as well.

The event was devoid of the customary opening day trimmings, which are reserved for the "official" Ebbets Field opening Thursday. About 32,000 fans braved threatening weather to see the first round of the traditionally bitter series.

An error of Al Lopez put the Giants in front in the second inning. Hack Wilson, making his first appearance with the Dodgers since the season opened, clouted one against the right field fence in the seventh for a triple, and Tony Cuccinello immediately drove him home with the tying run, lining a single through the infield.

CAREY, AUTO RACE STAR, KILLED

Hurtles From Track at Los Angeles; 4th at Indianapolis.

LOS ANGELES, April 16 (U.P.).—Bob Carey, 1932 national racing champion, was fatally injured at Ascot Speedway today when his speeding automobile broke through the upper fence on "death curve" and hurtled 40 feet through the air.

The pilot was alone on the track, making a qualifying round for today's Easter Sweepstakes, when his throttle jammed going into the turn at 100 miles an hour.

The car, a supercharged Miller special, careened out of control to the top of the banked turn, shattered the fence and hurtled into space, turning over before it landed upside down.

Carey died a few minutes after entering the hospital. Surgeons said he suffered a broken neck, fractured skull and crushed chest.

The pilot, as his last act, apparently cut the ignition of his machine. The wreckage did not catch fire.

A small crowd was present to see preliminary events before the start of the day's feature race, which closed the racing season here.

Carey died on the same curve where three other pilots had lost their lives. Two weeks ago Tom Forsyth, of Oakland, hit the fence and was killed.

In February, 1931, Earl Farmer was killed in trying to escape a crash, and in November of the same year Herman Schurch was injured fatally. Like Carey, Schurch was the victim of a jammed throttle.

Carey, who was fourth in last year's Indianapolis classic and was a favorite to repeat this year, was survived by his widow and an 8-year-old son, Bob, jr.

Flanagan Claims Swimming Marks

16-Year-Older Betters 400 and 500 Yard Free-Style Records.

Miami, Fla., April 16 (A.P.).—Ralph Flanagan, freckle-faced 16-year-old schoolboy, today claimed two new world's swimming records. With five persons clocking his free style stroke, he clashed past the 400-yard mark in 4 minutes 21 2-5 seconds and then went over the 500-yard line in 5 minutes 31 1-5 seconds.

The record for 400-yard free style is 4:26, held by Arne Borg, of the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago. The 500-yard free style record, also held by Borg, is 5:31:4.

Steve Forsyth, Flanagan's coach, announced he would apply to the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States for recognition of the boy's speeds.

Flanagan already holds the world's record for 1,000 yards free style and the national record for 500-yard free style. He won the latter in national competition recently in New York.

He was a member of the United States Men's Olympic Swimming Team last year.

Decision to Paulino As Spanish Fans Jeer

Seville, Spain, April 16 (A.P.).—Paulino Uzcudun, Basque woodchopper, gained a disputed decision over Hans Schonrath, of Germany, in a ten-round bout here tonight. The verdict was protested by some of the 10,000 spectators who seemed to think the Teuton heavyweight's aggressiveness entitled him to a draw.

Paulino seemed to be taking things easy all the way, apparently regarding the bout as a mere tune-up for his meeting with Pierre Charles, of Belgium, at Madrid, June 5.

Nats Hopeful Of Meeting Red Sox

Crowder Will Oppose Boston if Weather Man Relents.

Andrews Seen Choice of McManus for Mound Duty.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

OLD MAN WEATHER, who had been rounding into his meanest form for two days, but was unable to crash into the line-up, came through with a no-hit, no-run, no-game performance yesterday, blanking both the Nats and the Red Sox with his moist delivery.

But Clark Griffith, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, not to be outdone by this maneuver, quickly produced today's open date on the schedule and announced that his hirelings would engage the Red Sox in the resumption of the series this afternoon, provided Old Man Weather could be routed off the premises by 3 p. m.

The day went into the defeat column for the Washington Club's business office, however, which had anticipated a goodly gathering augmented by the baseball minded among the city's 100,000 Easter visitors, despite the fact that the Red Sox were the opposition.

Crowder's Turn to Hurl Today.

The big four of the Nats' pitching staff have now rotated in four games and today it will be the turn of Alvin Crowder, according to the deep-laid plans of Manager Joe Cronin, who is hewing to a prearranged pitching program that makes the five-year plan look like a daydream.

Manager Marty McManus, of the Red Sox, is expected to entrust Paul Andrews with the pitching duties today and there are some who say that Andrews is the best on the Boston staff. He is remembered, not fondly, by the Yankees as the man they tossed into the deal for Danny Macfayden last year, along with $50,000 in U. S. Treasury scrip, and who then proceeded to pitch winning ball for the Red Sox, while Macfayden's victories for the Yankees were as scarce as white blackbirds.

Red Sox Looking Upward This Year.

Time was when the Red Sox were kept in the league only by the fact that the circuit had installed a concrete cellar. They still repose on the bottom with four games gone into the club standings, but it seems that they are looking up. Thomas Yawkey, the New York multimillionaire, and the chancellor in his baseball cabinet, Eddie Collins, are traveling with the club, and as soon as the weak spots are discernible, the Yawkey millions will be brought into play in a few corrective efforts.

There was no disgrace attached to the 2-1 beating that the Red Sox absorbed at the hands of Joe Cronin's men Saturday when even Yawkey and Collins could recognize that very little was to be expected against such pitching as Monte Weaver displayed. On the other hand, as they say, the Red Sox were full of fight and always dangerous.

Lot of Punch in Red Sox Line-Up.

There was compensation for the defeat in the pitching of Gordon Rhodes, another Yankee castoff, who limited the Nats to five hits in seven innings, and with this kind of pitching there are grounds for belief that the Red Sox are destined for a more lofty place in the standing of the clubs, especially with the bats of Dale Alexander, Smead Jolley, Roy Johnson, Johnny Hodapp and Patty Fothergill within ready call. And there was nothing sleve-like about that Red Sox infield of Alexander, Hodapp, Warstler and McManus, especially Warstler.

With three victories in four games under his belt, neither is there any reason for Joe Cronin to be displeased with the work of his Nats thus far. There is, of course, the sad fact that in their last two games they have been held to six hits and five hits, respectively, but the kind of pitching that Lefty Grove and Gordon Rhodes dished up permits few liberties to any club.

The weight of his managerial duties, which his severest critics said would be bound to affect Cronin's

BRAVES BOW IN OPENER TO PHILS

Nick Berly for Only Two Hits and Bow by 2-0 Count.

BOSTON, April 16 (A.P.).—The Boston baseball opening, postponed four times, today gave the curve-balling John Berly an opportunity to hold the Boston Braves to 2 hits as the Phillies shut them out, 2-0.

Damp, chill weather held the first-day crowd down to 7,500 and curtailed the usually elaborate ceremonies to simple exercises, during which Mayor James M. Curley threw out the first ball after Bill McKechnie and Burt Shotton, rival managers, hoisted the National emblem in right field.

Walter "Huck" Betts, the Braves' weather-proof right-hander, held the Phillies to five hits but they were bunched. Dick Bartell, second man to face Betts, rapped out a single and went to second on "Shanty" Hogan's passed ball. He scored on Chuch Klein's double to left.

The Phillies pushed over their second run in the fifth, on John Warner's single, Delker's sacrifice and Berly's timely line drive.

COACH PAGE TO QUIT AT CHICAGO

Great 4-Sport Tutor Forced Out by New Athletic Rule.

CHICAGO, April 16 (A.P.).—Pat Page, considered one of the greatest four-sport coaches in the college world, is leaving the University of Chicago at the end of the current school year in June.

Caught in the "new deal" athletic movement on the midway, which forced out the veteran Amos Alonzo Stagg after 41 years of service as athletic director and head football coach, Coach Page has decided to look for another job.

"I guess I just don't fit in the picture anyway," he said sadly as he contemplated severing ties with his alma mater. "Coach Stagg didn't fit either and I guess our sports ideals are stale."

Athletic Constructural Job Wanted.

Coach Page said he didn't know where he would go.

"I have several offers," he explained, but am anxious to land a four-sport job at a university or college where there is considerable athletic construction work to be done. I'm happiest when I'm working in football, baseball, basket ball and track. I'm still young, you know, and have plenty of ambition."

Page's name has been in headlines over the sports pages for almost 31 years as a four-sport star and coach. He started his athletic career with the Lewis Institute of Chicago in 1902 and starred in track and basket ball.

As a student at Chicago, taught by Coach Stagg, he became one of the outstanding stars in football, baseball and basket ball, playing on the championship football teams of 1907 and '08 and on the title-winning baseball teams of 1908, '09 and '10. From 1910 to '20, he was head basket ball and baseball coach and assisted in football and track. His greatest coaching showing came at Butler from 1920 to '25, where his basket ball teams won national recognition.

Since Page's return to Chicago, he has been head line coach in football and varsity baseball coach. Saturday his Maroons, though weakened by the loss of Roy Henshaw to the Chicago Cubs, defeated Notre Dame.

NEW SWIMMING MARK.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, April 16 (U.P.).—Albert Camet, of Argentina today established a new South American record of 5 minutes 17.2 seconds for the 400 meters free style swim. He was clocked in that time during dual competition between the Argentine Hindu Club and the Brazilian Guana Bara Club.

Mound Ace Injured as Browns Bow; West Gets 8th

ST. LOUIS, April 16 (A.P.).—Cleveland won its third straight game of the season here today, 7 to 1, from the St. Louis Browns, who thereby met their third consecutive defeat.

The victory may have been expensive for the Indians, as Wes Ferrell pulled a tendon in his shoulder in striking out Burns in the seventh inning. C. Brown followed Ferrell to the mound.

After an examination, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club surgeon of the Browns, said that Ferrell had torn loose adhesions which had formed in his right shoulder.

Ferrell has experienced difficulty with the shoulder for several years and the injury may actually prove beneficial, Dr. Hyland explained.

West Gets Seventh, Eighth Hits in Row.

Sam West, St. Louis center fielder, made his seventh and eighth consecutive hits, but ended his run when he filed out at his third appearance at the plate. A crowd of 12,000 persons saw the game.

Young Corbett Plans To Train Near Ocean

Los Angeles, April 16 (A.P.).—Young Corbett will train near the ocean for his welterweight title defense against Jimmy McLarnin here May 29.

Larry White, his manager, dropped this information before leaving for San Francisco after signing for the ten-round championship bout yesterday.

"Corbett never has been right," said White, "when he fought in Los Angeles. He has lost as much as 3 or 4 pounds here overnight while in training.

"The reason he has made his best fights in San Francisco, I believe, is because he has trained near the water. After spending a week at Yosemite, he probably will come south and open a training camp at one of the beaches."

McLarnin probably will train in the Westwood Hills, near here, but his manager, Charles (Pop) Foster, said he might put in a few days' work at Oakland before coming south.

Agitato Lands Chase Feature at Auteuil

Auteuil, France, April 16 (A.P.).—E. Ballero's Agitato won the classic President de la Republique steeplechase handicap at 4,500 meters today with President Lebrun and King Gustav of Sweden among the spectators.

Agitato won by three lengths from R. Sibilat's Ski to earn the major share of a purse of 250,000 francs (about $10,000).

LADYSMAN IMPRESSES MARYLAND FANS IN DEBUT AT GRAW

Colt Is Derby Mount for Workman

Mutuel Play Falls Off at Graw; Pompey's Sons Shine.

Tambour Faces First Test Today, Mare Meets Action.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

BEER and racing mixed for the first time in many years at Havre de Grace on Saturday and, although the combination was productive of a sizable crowd, estimated as high as 15,000, play in the mutuel machines fell off noticeably. The official tabulation showed that $341,482 was bet on the program which opened the Maryland racing season, as compared with $535,230 wagered on the first day of 1932 at the same track.

But racing officials are not discouraged. They anticipated a further reduction in play and cut their purses accordingly. Unless bad weather is encountered throughout most of the meeting, the association expected to show a profit.

Those who saw Ladysman in action are high in their praise of W. R. Coe's Kentucky Derby candidate. The colt was not hurried at any stage of his first test, was steadied close to the pacemakers, and, although he is credited with only a half-length margin over Rush Hour at the finish, Sonny Workman was only breezeing, allowing the 1932 juvenile champion to finish on his own. True, 6 furlongs is not the mile and a quarter which represents the test in the Derby, but the smooth action of Ladysman won him many new backers for the classic.

Ladysman Heavier Now.

Ladysman has filled out nicely since his gruelling campaign of last year, and it is likely that he will be worked gradually up to the Derby distance. He may take a few more sprints before being sent a mile, probably at Pimlico.

Washingtonians are deeply interested in the Coe star because he will be ridden in the derby, according to reliable information, by our own Sonny Workman, which would indicate that C. V. Whitney doesn't think much of his nominees. Whitney will have Robertson to ride if he sends one representative to the post.

Those who followed the Pompey hunch cashed on both of the outstanding races here Saturday. Like Ladysman, Pompeius, the winner of the slashed Harford, was sired by Pompey, who sent a string of winners to the post hereabouts last year. Although most of them won on off tracks, Pompey get has proved formidable on the fast strips.

Two allowance races share the feature spots on the program offered for today. The fourth race, a six-furlong sprint, brings together a group of 3-year-old fillies who showed to advantage last season. Among them are Illusive, Boy Crazy, War Banner, and others popular in this section.

The fifth, at a mile and 70 yards, will mark the first test of 1933 for Tambour, owned by Preston Burch, of the Capital. Tambour campaigned successfully hereabouts and is reported in good trim.

Tambour wintered at Benning and is reported to be in excellent condition. Action, who starred in Florida racing this winter, will meet the Burch colorbearer.

The long shot hunters will be gunning today, with muddy going assured after yesterday's driving rain.

Regarded Highly as Derby Threat

up-and-coming son of Hourless—Clonakilty, who is regarded favorably by many as a possible Kentucky Derby winner. He is owned by the R. M. Eastman estate and his chief claim to fame is his victory in the Florida Derby at Hialeah last winter, in which he came on to triumph over the best 3-year-olds there.

South, East Look Forward To Virginia Gold Cup Race

Special to The Washington Post.

WINCHESTER, Va., April 16.—Representatives of leading stables in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia and lovers of horseflesh in a dozen Eastern States are expected to gather at Warrenton, Fauquier County, on May 6 for the twelfth annual running of the Virginia Gold Cup Race.

The first Virginia Gold Cup race was back in 1922, when sportsmen gathered on the same ground to witness the thrilling finish of Mrs. Katherine Hitt's Laddie, which came home in front.

The gold cup placed in competition and valued at $1,000 has, under the rules of the association, to be won three times by the same owner to become his or her permanent property.

Mrs. Hitt Won Last Cup Offered.

It is not necessary that the same horse win or that the winning be in consecutive years. In 1923, Oddity, owned by Mrs. Hitt, was the winner, giving her two legs on the cup. In 1924 there was a break in the Hitt racing fortunes and Mrs. Perkins' Parana led a good field home. Mrs. Hitt came back in 1925 to win it with John Dunny and took permanent possession of the cup.

Subscriptions raised a like cup to be placed in competition in 1926. The first horse to take a leg on this cup was the famed Billy Barton, property of Howard Bruce, of Baltimore. In 1927 T. M. Bowen's Dum Dum was first home. Mrs. C. C. Rumsey claimed a leg on the cup in 1928 with her Tijuca. Mrs. Walter Salmon's Dunks Green was the 1929 winner, while Mrs. Summer Pingree's Soissons won in 1930. The 1931 race went to Seraphe, owned by Mrs. John Hay Whitney. Last year, Jack Skinner piloted Melita, the property of the Flying Horse Farm, home ahead of a good field.

The Virginia Gold Cup and the three races preceding it will be run under sanction of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. The race committee is: Wm. Almy, jr., Amorsy S. Carhart, E. Astley Cooper, W. W. Gulick, Frederick H. Prince, jr., George Sloane, B. D. Spilman, jr., William B. Streett, J. C. Williams, and Robert C. Winmill with Chaffraix Lelong, secretary to the race committee. Frank J. Bryan is the racing secretary with address at Room 920, of 250 Park avenue, New York City, where all entries must be made. Entries close on April 20, one week before the race.

No Schooling Allowed Over Course.

Stabling for horses from a distance can be arranged by application to Chaffraix Lelong. No schooling will be allowed over the race course, according to the committee's ruling.

Three races, two in the forenoon and one at 3:15 in the afternoon, precede the running of the Virginia Gold Cup. The first two races are over the estates of Robert Winmill, Clovelly.

The first race is known as the Agricultural Steeplechase and is a 2-mile jaunt over timber open to horses the absolute property of bona fide farmers over whose lands the Warrenton Hunt had hunted the preceding season. The purse for this race is $150.

The second race to be run at noon is the North Wales Steeplechase for 4-year-olds and upwards over 2½ miles of brush for a $500 purse.

The race just before the Virginia Gold Cup race is called for 3:15 over the Gold Cup course, and is known as the Warrenton Hunt Cup for registered hunters; the distance, 3 miles for a piece of plate.

The Gold Cup race, run at 4 o'clock, is a 4-mile journey over 22 stiff fences over the Baldwin D. Spilman estate, Clovercroft. Four-year-olds to carry 150 pounds, 5-year-olds 160 pounds and 6-year-olds and upwards to carry 165 pounds, to be ridden by amateur riders in colors or by officers in the United States Army or Navy in uniform.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: HAVRE DE GRACE, APRIL 16.

Butter Beans, $50.20, and Night Patrol, $13.70, were my only winners yesterday. Mike was responsible for Butter Beans but I put Character on top of the B. B. Stable star. However, the latter was scratched and Mike's good thing crashed down. We had rain here today, more rain, and when I took my head out of the books late tonight it was still raining. I understand they are hauling a boat up from the nearby river tonight to be used by the starter tomorrow. I have picked only web-footed horses for tomorrow. Here's hoping we keep in the swim. BILL.

FIRST RACE—DREEL comes to the races from Trojan stock which favors the muddy going and has as much chance of escaping the maiden ranks as anything in the field which, with two exceptions, is composed of first-time starters. HAPPY SURPRISE is well bred and may draw Sonny Workman as the rider. Of the others, I like RUNNING HEEL.

SECOND RACE—TREMENDOUS, at first glance, appears to be outclassed in this field, but the mud will make a difference. The Canter filly beat a pretty fair field in the mud at Laurel last fall and was campaigned during the winter in Florida, always on a fast course. Toward the end of the meeting, the filly hit her stride and was shipped in perfect shape. Might catch GOLDEN SHIP and TOWEE in need of racing.

THIRD RACE—RESURRECTION, Earl Sande's charge, appears to have the edge on the maiden 3-year-olds scheduled to face the barrier in this sprint. Performed capably on occasions last year and is reported fit. BROAD BILL is a highly regarded Bradleyite. PARITY should show.

FOURTH RACE—MANYA is making her first start in Maryland and is topped in 1932 winnings only by ILLUSIVE. MANYA will appreciate the mud and may provide the boys with a fair-sized mutuel. I like ILLUSIVE for place. Reported ready. BOY CRAZY for the rest of it.

FIFTH RACE—TAMBOUR gets the Bennings call in this. Comes to me races in excellent shape as the result of much training at Benning, where the mare is reported to have stepped lively. Has no fear of muddy going. ACTION for the place ahead of NEVERFADE, one that may jolt the talent.

SIXTH RACE—TRAFFIC JUDGE attempts to travel in faster company tomorrow, but the gelding's present form can not be overlooked. Comes into action freshened by a rest since Florida. FRIGATE BIRD and WORTHINGTON for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—BIDE A WEE, the Black Tony mare, is in rare form at present and ready to take advantage of the going offered. GENERAL LEJEUNE is a mudder of parts and will figure in the distribution of the cash. JUST FUN may be the sleeper.

League at Boys Club For Insects and Midgets

Charley Reynolds, recently appointed athletic director of the Boys Club of Washington, has announced plans for the organization of insect and midget baseball teams at the club. Reynolds plans to enter the teams in the Capital City League.

An indoor baseball league also will be organized at the club. There will be two divisions, one for boys 16 years and under, and the second for boys 14 years and under. Boys not registered in the club are invited to participate.

Derby Hopes Named by Bradley

Stable to Depend on Boilermaker and Broker's Tip.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 16 (A.P.).—Announcement by Col. E. R. Bradley that he had chosen Boilermaker and Broker's Tip to carry his colors in the Kentucky Derby enabled turf followers to obtain a more definite line today on the prospects of Western candidates for the $50,000 added stake at Churchill Downs, May 6.

Col. Bradley, the only turfman to win three Derbys, said Boilermaker and Brokers' Tip appeared to be the best prospects among his six eligibles, and barring misha , they would be his entries this year. They probably will be entered in their first race of the year at Lexington, Tuesday.

Charley O. Has Large Following.

Charley O, winner of the Florida Derby for the R. M. Eastman estate, probably has the largest following among Western nominees training at Churchill Downs, and is considered a certain starter. His workouts have been impressive, over both fast and slow tracks.

Other leading Western candidates training nicely at the Downs are the Shandon Farm's At Top, filly which won the Jefferson Derby; Mrs. W. Crump's Head Play, Lon Jones' Fair Rochester, the Three D's Stable's Strideaway, Laffon and Yeiser's entry of Shepherd Boy and Flying Cadet, and William E. Smith's Knockaway, a colt imported from Ireland as a yearling.

More than a score of nominees are in training at Lexington, where a race meeting is in progress, but only a few of these so far have proved of Derby caliber. J. C. Milam's Captain Red has the best spring racing record, having won twice at the Kentucky Association course.

Warren, jr., a superb mudder, owned by the Calument Farm, famed trotting horse establishment which recently entered the thoroughbred field, is the only other Derby nominee which has won at Lexington. Others, however, have made good showings in races against older horses.

These include Charles T. Fisher's Pre War, a Mon o' War colt; C. C. Van Meter's Red Whisk, M. J. Conley's My Blaze, and Mrs. A. M. Creech's Interpreter, each having finished in the money at one time or another during the first week of Lexington racing.

Louisville, Ky., April 16 (A.P.).—Easter Sunday was a holiday for Kentucky Derby eligibles in training at Churchill Downs here. Heavy rains yesterday and last night made the oval so muddy that track officials decided to put up the "dogs" to hasten the drying-up process.

Several workouts were scheduled for Monday.

Georgetown Nine on Trip

Hoyas to Open Tour Against Temple U. Team Friday.

A SQUAD of 15 Georgetown baseball players will leave Friday morning for a week-end trip that will bring them up against outstanding Northern colleges.

The Hoyas stack up against Temple U. in Philadelphia Friday, arriving in New York the following day for a tilt with New York University. St. John's, of Brooklyn, is scheduled Sunday and the local aggregation will conclude the jaunt Monday, stopping over in a Philadelphia for a second engagement with the Owls.

The pitching burden will fall on the sturdy shoulders of Bill Carpenter, who won all but two games last season, losing to Holy Cross and Navy; Lefty Lindquist and George Neslie, the latter up from the freshman squad.

Hargaden Shifted to Short.

Ed Hargaden, generally conceded the regular position at first base, has been shifted to shortstop in an effort to bolster the infield, giving up his place to Tommy Carolan. Herb Hutchinson will be at the midway station, with Capt. Bill Rapp at the far corner.

A trio of hard-hitting flyhawks, who figure to give the club a punch, will be in the line-up, Jack O'Rourke, in left field, Bob Hall, center field, and Nick Viskivitch, right field. All batted well over the .300 mark last season.

One of the most promising rookies to come up at Georgetown in several years will be behind the bat, Joe Saverini. The lad has shown exceptional promise in practice sessions, especially with the stick, and is a brainy receiver and death to base-runners with his pegging.

Carolan Led Batters Last Year.

Carolan, football and basket ball star, last season led the Hoya team in batting, socking the ball for a .360 clip. O'Rourke pressed him, his splendid work against crack Northern nines enabling him to wind up the season with a .355 average.

There was quite a battle for the second base post between Hutchinson and Hilreay Costello, but Hutchinson appeared to be the classier of the two, and will get the call in the starting line-up against Temple, with Costello serving as understudy.

The same has been true of Hall and Gus Mitchell, who are battling for the center field post.

The St. John's game will revive memories of the stirring basket ball tilt between the two teams at Tech High, a contest that went to the visitors. It will be the only Sunday ball game on Georgetown's schedule. New York University will be encountered at Ohio Field.

A return game with Temple is scheduled the latter part of this month here.

German-Americans Win at Soccer, 3 to 1

Playing in a downpour of rain at Benning Field, the German-American Soccer Club, of this city, defeated the German-American A. C., of New York, by a score of 3-1 yesterday. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions a large crowd turned out to see the teams battle.

The local team's triumph was quite a surprise to soccerists since the visitors were pregame favorites. Beaveryn booted two goals and Bryn added the third to assure the victory.

Jim Jeffries Disgusted With Fighters of Today

Do Not Train Properly and Fail to Put Up Best Battles, Says Former Champion on 58th Birthday.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

BURBANK, Calif., April 15 (A.P.).—Jim Jeffries, former world's heavyweight champion, paused in his ranch duties on his fifty-eighth anniversary to mention several things he considers wrong with the fight game today.

"Most of the fighters won't train," said the grizzled veteran of many a tough battle between 1896 and 1910.

Too Tired to Chase Around At Night.

"Why, when I went into training for a fight I did miles of road work in the morning, played handball or baseball in the afternoon and then took a couple or three hours' workout in the ring each day.

"I was so tired by that time that I was ready to go to bed at 8 or 9 o'clock and didn't have any desire to go out and chase around at night. The other fighters did the same thing.

"When we fought, we took pride in our ability to knock the other fellow's head off. There wasn't any hokum like giving a logical contender the run-around. We took 'em as they came.

"A lot of times nowadays, when I referee a fight, I think the boys don't care much whether they get licked or not. They're in there just to get their money. I've been about ready to throw some of them out of the ring, but you have to think about the public paying to see a full fight and you hate to stop a bout."

Jim says he has become so disgusted with the situation that he has more or less given up refereeing. He has his hundred-acre ranch to look after and finds himself pretty busy. Jeffries sponsors a weekly amateur show in a small gymnasium built on one corner of his property. He has an automobile race track along one side and a dance hall fronts on another street.

Can Always Return Land to Indians.

"I like to work at this place," he said, with a look of pride in his gray eyes. "Taxes are pretty heavy and it keeps a fellow scratching to keep out of debt right now, but I don't worry. What's the use?

"I always say, when you can't keep your land any more, you can always give it back to the Indians."

SPENCER AND MATTISON WIN

Shorey and Rippey Bow In Rain

Women's Golf Delayed; Middle Atlantic Pros Clash.

A STEADY downpour of rain yesterday washed out a number of Easter golf tournaments planned for various District courses, and also forced cancellation of a friendly match at Congressional Country Club in which the distinguished feminine player Maureen Orcutt was to have been the outstanding participant.

Miss Orcutt, who Saturday shot rounds of 78 and 79 while touring Columbia and Kenwood, respectively, will probably forego her play at Congressional, and weather permitting, she will jaunt over to fashionable Chevy Chase for an eighteen-hole voyage with Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, her hostess; Mrs. C. R. Harbaugh, her Cleveland friend, Miss Susan Hacker, and the professional, Bob Barnett.

Ole Jupiter Pluvius also prevented Roger Peacock, District champion, home for the holidays from Duke University, from teaming with the little maestro, George Diffenbaugh, against the Manor seige guns, Harry Pitt, champion, and Al Treder, pro, in an eighteen-hole match at Indian Spring.

Spencer and Mattison Winners.

It rained cats and dogs (if you will forgive a trite expression) at Beaver Dam's lengthy layout yesterday, but the torrential downpour failed to dampen the ardor of Cliff Spencer and his partner, Douglas Mattison, and their opponents, Mel Shorey, East Potomac instructor, and his comrade, young Claude Rippey, in a special 18-hole match.

Rallying after being two down at the turn, Spencer and Mattison, who batted for J. F. Baggett, triumphed by 1 up, thanks to Spencer's birdie on the tenth, his sensational mashie approach for a birdie on the fifteenth, and great recoveries by his partner on the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth.

Mattison, one of the most improved players at Beaver Dam, moved the participants to admiration with his performance. His 41, 37—78 was the lowest he had ever scored. Mattison's 30-yard chip shot dead to the cup on the eleventh saved a hole. On the twelfth he made another perfect pitch for a par to win the hole, while on the thirteenth, after being ditched on his drive and short with his second, approached within 6 inches, to assist in halving the hole.

Spencer and Shorey had 77's and Rippey a 79.

Beaver Dam Play Postponed.

The second round of the first team matches between clubs of the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association scheduled at Beaver Dam this morning has been postponed indefinitely, Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, team captain, last night announced.

Mrs. Keefer also stated that the next team matches will take place at Indian Spring on April 24.

Chevy Chase's women captured top honors in the first matches of the season conducted at Kenwood.

With the deadline for sending in entries set for Tuesday at noon, the annual Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial golf tournament scheduled at Washington Golf and Country Club Thursday already has attracted 96 entrants, with indications that the list will soar well over the 100 mark, it was announced last night by Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, chairman.

Every club in the District will be well represented by its feminine stars in the first outstanding event of the season sponsored by the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association. Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, of Columbia, was the winner last year, with Mrs. Tschiffely as runner-up.

Women wishing to enter should phone Adams 9042.

In accordance with the program mapped out at last week's session in Baltimore, professionals of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. will gather shortly after noon today at Chevy Chase to participate in a sweepstakes tournament. Practically all of the District pros and a number from Baltimore will compete.

Winners of prizes in the selective handicap golf tournament conducted Thursday and Friday at the Argyle Country Club as a feature of the annual Board of Governors' Day were announced last night by W. H. Taylor, golf chairman.

The members' prizes were won by A. E. Willmett, with 43, 40—83-10—73, and W. H. Arnold, with 42, 43—85-14—71. J. D. Grant was awarded the guest prize, after being tied with C. J. Sutphin. Grant had 43, 50—93-15—78, and Sutphin, 47, 51—97-20—78.

Over 100 golfers were entered in the selective tournament.

Jacobs Battles Brown In Baltimore Tonight

Stumpy Jacobs, hard-hitting Norfolk boxer, and Buster Brown, of Baltimore, both of whom are well known in local fight circles, will provide the feature match at the Dundee Athletic Club card tonight at 104th Medical Regiment Armory in Baltimore. They will step ten rounds. Jacobs recently knocked out Vince [illegible]erio.

Also fighting on the card in Mike [illegible]pio, who meets Donald First in a [illegible] and Harry Groves, who takes on [illegible]ny Kessler.

Wednesday in Baltimore on the Melrose Club card Clarence (K. O.) Burns meets Sam Finazzo in an eight-rounder; Sylvan Bass, Goldie Ahearn's protege from New York, clashes with Sammy Britt, in an eight, and Charley Thompson faces George Esrick. Britt is remembered for his matches with Young Van and Henry Irving, who are featured in Tuesday's card at Portner's.

GOLFERS BEAT ARCHERS.

Bury St. Edmunds, England (A.P.). The remnants of the skill that once made the archery of medieval England famous, for once failed to beat a team of golfers here. The golfers, who conceded nine strokes, met Cambridge Archers at the local golf course and won by four games to three.

GOOD BOUTS MARK U. S. PROGRAM

Loughran-Gastanaga and Jeby-Jones Are Standouts.

NEW YORK, April 16 (A.P.).—A new comeback by Tommy Loughran and a battle of middleweight champions, Ben Jeby vs. Gorilla Jones, furnish the high spots of this week's national boxing schedule.

Loughran, who abandoned the light-heavyweight throne several years ago to mingle with the heavyweights, faces Isidoro Gastanaga, hard-hitting Spaniard, in the Chicago Stadium Friday night. The other half of the double-windup will pit Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight, against Hans Birkie, Oakland, Calif. Both bouts are slated for ten rounds.

Jeby, recognized as middleweight champion by the New York State Athletic Commission, and Jones, accorded National Boxing Association recognition as American 160-pound champion, will fight twelve rounds or less at Cleveland Wednesday night, with neither's crown at stake.

Maxey Rosenbloom and Freddie Miller, the two busiest champions in the industry, again are booked for nontitle action. Rosenbloom, world's light-heavyweight titleholder, meets Martin Levandowski, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a ten-rounder at St. Louis Wednesday. Miller, N. B. A. featherweight king, tackles Abie Israel, of Seattle, in a six-rounder at Seattle Tuesday.

Light Batting No Worry to Cronin

Nat Pilot Is Satisfied Team Soon Will Hit Stride.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE the Nationals, who averaged more than thirteen hits per game in their last seven tune-up exhibitions, have cracked out but 32 safeties in the four league contests played to date, Manager Joe Cronin is not losing any sleep worrying.

"It's whether you win or lose that counts," the Nat leader explained, "and we've won three out of four. If I didn't know that we could hit, I'd be laying awake nights, but there's no reason to get excited about it as long as we get our share of victories. We'll hit our stride again most any day now and show the home fans some real honest-to-goodness clouting.

"So far, we've been fortunate in getting many of our blows when they meant runs, even though we haven't broken any records as to totals. Several of us, including myself, have failed to deliver as expected, but, take my word for it, we'll be clicking on all cylinders shortly. The power is there, make no mistake about that."

Nats Play Whenever Possible.

While many of the other teams in the league are looking for excuses to postpone ball games so as to make future double-headers possible, the Nationals have an entirely different policy.

"I want to try to educate Washington fans into the idea that, unless it is actually raining at 3 o'clock, they can expect a game. When the weather is threatening, we keep the infield covered and try to play whenever possible," said President Clark Griffith yesterday.

And, strange as it seems, yesterday's game was not declared off until 1:30 o'clock, notwithstanding the heavy rain of Saturday night and yesterday morning. The Nats plan to play today, if it is not actually raining at game time.

While it is a moot question as to whether a team makes a manager or a manager makes a team, it must be admitted that the leader who is on the job and overlooks few bets often turns victory into defeat for his aggregation.

Fans in the stands often do not realize the significance of many of the changes made by managers, being so intent upon watching the game that they give little thought to the so-called strategy attempted by the master-mind skippers.

Manager Marty McManus, for instance, overlooked a bet in Saturday's game and probably not one of the several thousand cash customers noticed it. In the ninth inning, with the Nats leading by only a one-run margin, the Red Sox had Watwood on second and Alexander on first and two out.

Alexander, as every one knows, is slower than molasses in winter and, as he represented what might have been the winning Boston run, McManus should have had a fast man replace him on the sacks. It so happened that Goslin made a fine running catch of Johnson's liner over toward the right-field line to end the game, but had the ball gotten by the Goose, a fast runner might have scored from first—but never Alexander.

Smart managers figure out contingencies like this ahead of time and are prepared to take advantage of them.

The Nats end their home stay against the Red Sox Wednesday and then go to Philadelphia to help the A's open their Quaker City season on Thursday. Three games will be played with the Mackmen and then Washington fans will get their first look at the 1933 Yankees, who are expected to pack Griffith Stadium Sunday in the first of a three-game set here.

play in the field, has had no effect whatsoever in that respect, but the fact does remain that the Nats' young boss hasn't made a hit since opening day and that Buddy Myer and Luke Sewell have made only one hit since the inaugural festivities.

Ossie Bluege had been the minute man in the lower end of the batting order, with Manush, Schulte and Goslin doing the heavy duty, the Nats will be at their best. But you can't find much fault with a team that's playing .750 ball.

Baltimore Amateurs May Miss Title Bouts

Baltimore, April 16 (A.P.).—Because the Baltimoreans desiring to enter the national junior boxing championships to be held at Boston next week would first have to go through the South Atlantic Association championships at Richmond this Friday and Saturday, one local fight club head tonight announced he would not permit his boys to enter.

He contended it would be too much of a grind for the boys to go through three or four bouts during the two days—Friday and Saturday—and then to entrain immediately for the Boston fights where they would have to go into three or four more bouts—all within five days.

Washington's Crew Near Record

Huskies Only 1.8 Behind Mark Set by Italians.

LONG BEACH, Calif., April 16 (A.P.).—Coach Al Ulbrickson, whose Washington oarsmen rowed to three victories here yesterday, establishing themselves as undisputed Pacific Coast champions, was kicking himself today.

The Huskie mentor became belatedly aware that his 1933 varsity, which won from California for the second consecutive week and the University of California at Los Angeles, over the 2,000-meter Marine Stadium course, "is the best" he ever coached.

Would Have Had Crew Open Up.

"I wish I had known," Ulbrickson complained, "that the boys could come so close to that course record."

He was referring to the time of 6 minutes 28.2 seconds set by Italy in a preliminary event of the Olympic games last summer. The Huskies won yesterday in 6 minutes 30 seconds.

"If I had known, I'd have had them open up. I told the coxswain to hold them to 36 strokes a minute if he got a little lead, and he certainly obeyed instructions, because they only got up to 38 on the last 100 feet or so.

"With a little head wind I figured we'd not be able to break the record and was just out to win the race. Too bad.

"I'll tell you a little secret. The first day we arrived we rowed the course in 6 minutes 20 seconds, but we had a little tail wind.

Fastest Crew Coach Ever Had.

"Yep, that's the fastest crew I've ever had."

The Huskies beat California by two lengths, going away, their long sweeping stroke steady from start to finish. In winning the freshman race by 6 feet from California, with U. C. L. A. third, they had a harder test, and edged out the Bears by only 3 feet in the four-oared event. They did not compete in the junior varsity race, which California won.

The Meanderer

Wonders if Housecleaning Now on Horizon Can Not Be Lightened With New Tools and Methods.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Spring house-cleaning approaching—hovering over some housewives like a black cloud—is inevitable, but not without hope of alleviation, at least, through the remarkably good aids to the house-cleaner that the Meanderer found in exploring the vast housewares department of one large F street department store. The Meanderer found herself wishing—almost—that she could take time from the typewriter to use some of the efficient, housewifely tools that are ready for spring house-cleaning.

Rubber gloves, probably the first step in getting ready for the spring cleaning orgy, have been much improved and much reduced in price since they were made first for housewives' use. This first necessity for house-cleaning may now be purchased for 50 cents. "Chums" they are called, these nondestructible rubber gloves, that positively will not tear, the saleswoman assured the Meanderer.

Special sturdy cleaning cloths, in coarse but soft mesh materials, remove dirt but do not leave lint deposits. They are large and soft and sell in sets of three for 25 cents up. Especially cured chamois cloths, finished so firmly and smoothly that they will not streak surfaces in any way, are another important help to the spring house-cleaner.

Goat's hair makes a wall broom that all good housewives will like. The goat's hair is an ideal brush filler for the purpose, giving the fluffiness that is necessary to annihilate cobwebs and the rigidity required to wear long and be washable. The wall broom has the necessary detachable, 6-foot handle. The price of this wall broom is now only $1.15. Formerly it sold for $1.65.

Waterless cleaning paste in 5-pound pails costs only 48 cents in this big housewares department. This paste is made especially for the store that sells it. The cleaning paste is ideal for walls and woodwork, and is used also on rugs, furniture and floors.

Ostrich-feather dusters in bright colors, festive enough to flip away the dreariness that dusting may have for some housewives, are washable. Combine the brilliant pink ostrich duster the Meanderer marveled over, and the magic mops which wring themselves without soiling fair hands, and housecleaning may become actually a dainty procedure, despite the "humph's!" of those who have never subscribed to pink dusters and self-wringing mops.

Kitchen-table coverings, shelvings, chair covers and even the pot holders may be made of matching oilcloth that is inexpensive and in a fascinating array of patterns—plaids, dots, silhouette and flower prints, stripes and checks. Black oilcloth with a white plaid motif is delightful, as is an entire ensemble in black and white silhouette pattern for the kitchen. After the housecleaning a few yards of such oilcloths to brighten the kitchen would be a cheerful, satisfying reward for the work expended in making the kitchen immaculate.

Chests of cedarized board with cedar-wood frames made in sizes for blankets and in upright styles with rods for about a dozen garments, are admirable offerings to the housewife. These chests should simplify the onerous task of packing away the winter things of the household for the summer.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

IF discipline is to be anything more than a way of making children behave so as temporarily not to interfere with the pleasure and convenience of others, it must train the child's feelings as well as his behavior.

In the past children were brought up chiefly to behave in certain acceptable ways and very little thought was given to the way they felt, as long as they did as they were told.

An apology was satisfactory regardless of the fact that inwardly the child was still seething with anger and hate.

So long as under the parental eye a child shared its toys with another, it was held that he was learning unselfishness, though it was clear all the time that he resented the presence of the child with whom he was thus forced to share.

A child who heeded a threat and mended his ways after punishment caused no one to inquire into what lesson he had really learned from these experiences. Apparently it occurred to only a few that the child's feeling was one of repressed hate which waited only until the moment when authority should become weak to assert itself in acts of meanness and violence in order to pay off the score.

Today we know that the child's character development is guided constructively only when he feels that those in authority are fair, reasonable and kind. When this is so, he wants to be as they want him. He does right because to be happy he must have their approval.

This sort of influence does not work overnight, producing model children, but it builds solidly from within, encouraging traits of character, developing a conscience which makes an individual really sensitive to finer values instead of one who is only afraid of being caught.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BLOOD PRESSURE AND EMOTIONS.

IN certain cases of high blood pressure the emotions seem to be of minor importance. In these cases the blood vessel walls are thick, rigid, and inelastic and the heart is under considerable strain in keeping the blood flow up to requirements. The principal trouble is organic rather than emotional.

However, even in this kind, one group of emotions must be guarded against. It is in just this type of trouble that apoplexy is most likely to occur and violent anger, excitement, and other violent emotion is one of the chief reasons for the blood vessel breaks that result in apoplexy.

Emotion of various kinds plays an important part in the regular day's work of the ordinary case of high blood pressure. A simple, rough standard by which to determine whether a given case belongs to the organic or the emotional group is the amount of fluctuation in the systolic pressure. If the systolic pressure in a given case runs rather uniform, never varying greatly, the probability is that the case belongs to the organic class. If, on the other hand, the readings vary much, both with or without treatment, the probability is the case belongs in the emotional group.

Osler once recommended that the man with high blood pressure should shift his performance from the Lusitania type to that of a ten knot tramp schooner. White recommended that every person with high blood pressure should quit the strenuous life and thereafter lead what he termed the placid, rural life. All of which is well enough to talk about, but getting the prescription filled is another matter. At that, there is no question but that worry, anxiety, fear, and tension are important in causing high blood pressure and in maintaining it. It follows that much the best treatment for persons with high pressure of this type is training in the placid life.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

THE wives of all our latest Presidents seem to have a fatal passion for blue. The present First Lady has chosen much blue in her wardrobe, and stores and debutantes are frantically stocking with blue; despite the fact that it was not, until chosen by her, the first choice of the mode.

It's all very nice to be patriotic, but I am going to be guilty of a wee hint to my readers—to the effect that they not sacrifice chic to patriotism. And blue is a color that is like the little girl—who was very very good when she was—and very, very opposite when the mood was on her.

It seems as though Dame Fashion couldn't get rough an' tough enough—in ther fabrics, that is. I have my eye on that studio couch of monk's cloth—la chic secretaire will cut it up into a coat if I don't watch out! String—burlap, sacking, and all sorts of similar weaves sporting fancy names are clothing Miladi this summer. Coats and dresses, tailleurs, and beach aprons. Which reminds me that my int'resting mamma used to say that all she wanted to ever wear was a sack with four holes cut in it—well, she practically has her chance to achieve this life-long ambition today!

Spring is here and lovely ladies' thoughts lightly turn to lingerie, pronounced, if you please, "lahn-jer-ee" and if you can't say that, say underwear! Well, our thoughts turned heavily to ours—lingerie, of course—and resulted in the discovery that practically everything we owned was in rags—absolutely rags. Rags that couldn't be ragged up together any more, either. So we took all our favorite leaflets to our favorite dressmaker, and told her to go ahead on them—with the result that we have a new spring feeling in our lingerie box! But then we thought of you, so not to be selfish, we put together into one leaflet all our favorite lingerie designs—and directions for making them, of course—and said designs and directions are yours for stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Shorts, bloomers, all-in-one summer undie, chemise—oh, this is a peachy leaflet. Better send for it!

Culbertson on Bridge

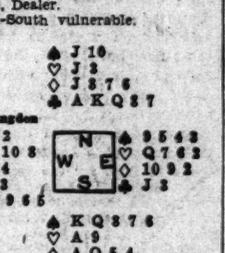
MASTERS OF BRIDGE.

LEE LANGDON, of New York City, has long been known as a master player of the cards. In winning the Vanderbilt Cup championship in 1929, together with Messrs. Michael T. Gottlieb, John P. Mattheys and Harry Raffel, he executed a brilliant squeeze on the very last hand of the tournament to cinch the match for himself and his team mates. That his defense is as good as his offense is amply proved by the following hand, which was defended by him in the Eastern championships, recently held at the Hotel Roosevelt, in New York City. Mr. Langdon's quickness in choosing a discard accounted for the defeat of an unbeatable contract.

South, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3◇	Pass	3♡	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The only bid open to criticism is the final four-spade bid by North. Actually, this bid is very fine, as South's rebid of the suit, even though delayed, shows five cards, and the two honors must serve as fillers. The hand, as a whole, is too weak to expect a game in a minor suit, and a final notrump contract is too dangerous on account of the doubleton heart.

Mr. Langdon's Opening lead was the 5 of hearts, which was won by Declarer with the Ace. Forced to draw trumps, South led two rounds of spades, Mr. Langdon winning the second round with the Ace. He cashed the King of hearts and followed with the 10, which was ruffed by Declarer. The King of spades was the next lead, and Mr. Langdon now proved his right to inclusion among the masters. He discarded the diamond 3, reasoning that his partner originally held four spades and would be forced to follow on one more round of that suit.

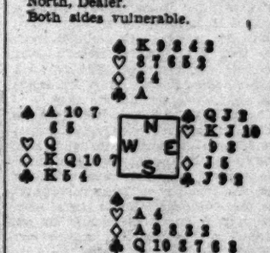
The normal player would have discarded his two hearts, but this, Mr. Langdon knew, would only insure the success of the contract. To discard a heart first and then follow with a diamond would only aid Declarer, and if this player was to be deceived at all, it must be through the immediate discard. A club discard, of course, could not be considered, as this was almost certain to establish the entire suit in Dummy.

Mr. Langdon's reasoning proved correct. On the next lead of spades he falsecarded the heart 8, still holding up the 4-spot, and Declarer, confident that he could lose but one more trick, now ran 3 club tricks in Dummy and then finessed the diamond. The appearance of Mr. Langdon's King of diamonds proved a great shock to him, as did the fact that the last two tricks were won with a heart and a club.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

Eight of America's expert players bid the hands below, and at the two tables strikingly different results were obtained. What should have been the proper bid by each player?

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF April 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:20 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:50 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:40 p. m. to 6:40 p. m.

Financial worries, possibly of a severe nature, may pop up on an otherwise clear horizon. Influences operating on this date will tend to make people generally susceptible to flattery. Children will seem to grasp things more quickly than is usually the case; responsive in school.

The child born on this April 17 will in all probability have little control over its passions or its mind. It will be inclined to have a rather violent temper. It is possible that this child will have to be ruled by fear instead of by love. A quick mind but a tricky one.

If April 17 is the date of your birth, you are quite likely far from being a self-sufficient person. You must always have someone about you for companionship and to give you praise, sympathy and encouragement and to spur you on generally to success. You are a person who thinks clearly along practical and business lines.

Born on April 17, you are perhaps a bit eccentric, though not enough so to hamper your success. You insist invariably on having your own way in matters of minor importance and allow yourself to become most annoyed if crossed in these things. In regard to vital issues, you keep an open mind and are willing to listen to reason. The women born on this day will have few interests, if any, outside of their homes. Every moment of their lives they devote to the proper maintenance of their homes and to caring for their husbands and little ones.

SENATE TODAY SEES INFLATION STRUGGLE

Determined Group Led by Wheeler Will Fight for Cheaper Money.

(United Press.)

A compact group of senators mustered their strength last night for a supreme test in the Senate today to determine whether America shall seek economic salvation by inflation of the currency.

It is doubtful whether any more important issue has been brought to the floor of Congress this session, for the outcome either will keep the United States on the narrow path of a rigid, unbending dollar or send it out along the road to cheaper money.

Slogans and theories of the "mauve decade," when Admiral Dewey was a hero and Theodore Roosevelt was a lieutenant colonel of volunteers in the Spanish-American War, have been carried out of the past and pressed into service again.

Wheeler Wants 16 to 1.

The cry of "16 to 1" will be raised again, even though its author, William Jennings Bryan, lies dead in Arlington National Cemetery. Another aggressive, eloquent Westerner will take up the torch where Bryan dropped it, when Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, rises to press for enactment of an amendment which would authorize the coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 to gold.

He will seek to have his amendment attached to the Roosevelt farm relief bill. Leaders on both sides of the chamber last night predicted Wheeler's defeat, despite the fact the Agriculture Committee brought in an opinion that some form of currency inflation provided the only hope for the American farmer.

Wheeler's is only one of the many inflation proposals up for Senate consideration. Senator Huey Long (Democrat), Louisiana, said last night he would insist on consideration today of his amendment to the farm bill providing for Government purchase of silver with the issuance of currency against the metal.

Plans of Progressives.

If the Wheeler and Long amendments are defeated, the next attack will come from the Republican Progressives. Senator Frazier has a bill which he hopes to substitute for the farm relief measure. It calls for the Government to issue between $8,000,000,000 and $9,000,000,000 in bonds to refinance farm mortgages. Provision is made for issuance of currency against the bonds.

Others expected to bulk large in the attack of the inflationists are Senators Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, and Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama.

Long gave out this warning last night: "The forthcoming economic conference must not interfere with our plans for building up a sound monetary system. Sentiment in America is rising by leaps and bounds for the restoration of the use of silver for money, or some other sound expansion of the currency. Bills of myself and others are actually before Congress, and, while these foreign countries have either gone off the gold standard or remonetized silver and depreciated their own currencies so they could lower production costs and raid the markets of the world, it is the last thing in the world they want to see America do."

Aguinaldo Assails Independence Law

Says Naval Base Clause Will Invalidate Isles' Neutralization.

Manila, P. I., (Monday) April 17 (A.P.).—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, former insurrecto leader, now an opponent of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, spoke in Bulacan Province today attacking the measure which was passed by Congress over the veto of former President Hoover.

Declaring changes in the Hawes-Cutting act are imperative to make it agreeable to Filipinos, he said provisions reserving naval bases in the islands, which he termed useless for defensive purposes, would inhibit plans for neutralization of the islands.

Gen. Aguinaldo said he believed the proper solution would be to apply a short-term interim of possibly four years, during which no restrictions, political or economic, would be imposed, with a grant of complete independence immediately after. Meanwhile, he added, the Jones law, the organic act of the islands, which at least promises independence, would be preferable.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York—On a sunny afternoon several weeks ago a small German liner was plodding its way slowly New York-ward off Cape Hatteras. The sky was clear and the sea empty with the exception of a smudge on the horizon which marked a slow freighter turned toward the tropics.

I was standing on the boat deck with the captain when he plucked my sleeve and handed me his binoculars, pointing ahead. In the distance I could make out what seemed to be a silver pencil in the sky. It was moving rapidly toward us, and after several moments the shining, platinum bag was speeding directly over our liner.

"Ach, those dirigibles," spoke the captain, philosophically. "I suppose in a few years there will be little use for liners like this one. We will all be traveling, flying about the world, in ships like that one."

Well, that was my last glimpse of the ill-fated Akron which I little dreamt would meet its tragic destiny a fortnight or two later in those same waves we were plodding through then.

An Interesting Lot.

Sea captains, as a lot, have always been the most interesting figures I have met in my journalistic rambings. This ship's master, who hailed the Akron that day at sea, is one of the best humored men I ever met.

With his diminutive Van Dyke-beard, whiskers waving in the wind and a tiny cigar clutched between his lips, his constant delight was to mingle with the passengers and learn new American slang.

A pretty young woman on the boat was constantly stopping him to ask when the ship would be off Cape Hatteras, as she wanted to experience one of the notorious storms off that point.

"Vhy do you uhlvays botter me mit voolish questhuns? Look at dot map," so chided the gallant Herr Kapitan as he pinched the young woman's nose and proceeded down the deck for his daily schnapps mit dem Herr Zahlmeister.

Meet Capt. Gus.

There then is Capitan Gus, who ran away from his home in Sweden 40 years ago to ride a cargo of lumber down to London. Now he commands one of those rusty, vagabond freighters that ship out of New York for obscure tropical ports.

His travels take him to dozens of adventurous, exotic places, but they hold no lure for this grizzled old salt. It is when his boat pulls up to its berth in the Hudson that his face becomes all smiles.

Once docked, he dons a worn blue suit and a battered straw hat. Then taking his noisy old flivver out of a nearby garage, he happily rattles away to Long Island where for the next few days he tends to his small chicken

COLLIER CONFIRMING DESPITE FIGHT SEEN

New Benefits to Indians Are Felt Likely in Naming of Veteran Leader.

(Associated Press.)

On the slightly stooped shoulders of a diminutive Californian—John Collier—will rest in all probability in the next few years the tremendous burden of overseeing the welfare of America's Indian wards.

Despite opposition, Senate leaders are predicting his confirmation for the place of Indian Commissioner, a post through which he intends to bring new benefits to the original Americans, in keeping with the declared policy of the Roosevelt administration.

Hair grown gray in their service, Collier has made known that he intends to fight for the Indians with every weapon at his command—a prediction his friends make, also after a glance backward at his past efforts.

He has crossed swords with many during his work for the Indian, including Ray Lyman Wilbur, former Secretary of the Interior. He has been active in the Capital for years as secretary of the American Indian Defense Association, appearing often before congressional committees.

His philosophy, as expressed time upon time to friends on Capitol Hill, is simply, "Justice for the red man!" Of his immediate plans, however, Collier will say nothing pending confirmation, smilingly intimating that in his opinion it would be bad taste.

Secretary Ickes, in announcing his approval of the new appointment, said the Commissioner of Indian Affairs should be the advocate for the Indians "fighting for their interests and pleading their cause." Of Collier he added:

"In addition to safeguarding the property rights of Indians, he will help them to help themselves toward a fuller and happier life. He will respect their customs, encourage them in their arts and assist them to maintain their rich and unique culture."

Years of work in the defense association often have kept him embroiled with buerau officials, but even some of his opponents have conceded privately that his campaigns have brought about many reforms and that he has the confidence of the majority of the country's Indians.

Jewish Reprisals Program Outlined

New York Group Advises Three Steps to Bring Hitler to Terms.

New York, April 16 (A.P.).—The Jewish Court of Arbitration made public today a message it sent all Jewish synagogues and societies in the city, recommending that three "reprisals" be taken "if our battle against the uncivilized hordes of the Hitler regime is to be victorious." They are:

"1. Every Jewish traveler going for his summer vacation to Europe shall evade Germany and deprive the Hitlerites from receiving a few hundred million dollars * * *

"2. Every Jew in the United States * * * shall ask the United States Government not to recognize the German Ambassador to Washington until there will be a statement from the Hitler government that the Jews of Germany will be given equal suffrage with the other natives, or that they be permitted to leave that unfortunate country forthwith.

"3. Every Jewish business man shall consider it his strongest weapon against the outrages in Germany to boycott German goods, and to refuse to accept shipments of German wares of all description."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

A MAMMAL, a reptile and a bird engaged in a fight that resulted as follows: Death to all three participants, breaking a high tension power line, starting a forest fire.

The incident, observed by William Martin in the Angeles national forest, California, started when a snake attacked a gopher. A hawk, seeing the battle, swooped down and grasped them both. In flying away with its victims, the hawk ran into a high tension wire and all three were electrocuted. The wires touched each other, shortening the circuit and breaking one of the wires, which fell to the ground, starting a fire in the brush.

Hot summers and cold winters in this country do not even compare with the weather conditions in Verkhoyansk, Siberia, where the range of temperature is more than the difference between the freezing and boiling points of water.

The record low temperature there is —90 degrees F., or 122 degrees below freezing. In the warm season temperatures as high as 90 degrees above zero are recorded. Ninety degrees above, by the way of comparison, is the mean temperature in Phoenix, Ariz., during the month of July—the hottest month of the year.

Cold as it is, nevertheless, Verkhoyansk is inhabited the year around, and residents there are much less concerned with the cold winters than they are with the warm summers, because in summer there is always a plague of mosquitoes.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LETTERS FROM A GOVERNMENT REFORESTATION CAMP—No. 3.

DEAR GUS

I didn't get that liniment I wrote you for. Will you please rush it at once, as it is very important? Now I know why George Washington is called the greatest American. He quit after cutting down one tree.

* * * *

Believe me, when we get through with this army we will know that President Roosevelt was certainly telling the truth when he said he was determined to put the American people to work. I only been on this job a week, and I have done more work the last 24 hours than my whole family ever did in its life. I feel like I have cleared Pennsylvania.

* * * *

Either all trees are solid mahogany or all axes are made of rubber. It is one thing or the other. I never had no idea a tree put up such a fight against being cut down. Boy, how they can take it!

* * * *

It is pretty discouraging, especially when I look around and see how many trees there are in this country. I always knew we had lots of trees, but I didn't know they were so close together. No matter how many trees a guy cuts down he is still surrounded.

* * * *

Of course all the work ain't cutting down trees. Besides thinning 'em out where they're too thick we plant new ones where they ain't, and we do what they call land escape gardening, that is we give the whole woods a facial massage so they will look better and last longer, though they last long enough to suit me as it is.

* * * *

I don't sleep any too well up here as the woods is so quiet it makes me nervous. I miss the taxicabs and the street shootings. I like my noises loud and out in the open, not soft and creepy like you get up here.

* * * *

The dollar a day is not much money, but some of the boys are doing pretty well independent of their wages. They brought up some dice and are doing pretty well, although I personally can't win a dime on account I can't get used to rolling the bones over uneven ground on the side of hills and things.

* * * *

There is no question that after six months in one of these Roosevelt hatchet camps a guy comes out in good physical condition or he comes out in an ambulance. After a few more days of this I would fight Dempsey before breakfast and take on Schmeling and Sharkey after lunch. (With my ax, of course:)

* * * *

Well, Gus, what is worrying me is what will become of me when I get through and return to civilization. It is a sure thing that I won't feel right in any job that can be filled sitting down. Yours truly, EDDIE.

* * * *

P. S.—If you want any advice how to take insects out of trees, let me know. I pick up a lot of dope here.

FOR EFFICIENCY'S SAKE.

Another Columbia professor has been appointed to an important Washington post by President Roosevelt. It is now being suggested that all Columbia classes hold their reunions at the White House for the next four years so the festivities will not take the boys away from their jobs.

Somebody is proposing that the Vanderbilt Cup Race be renewed on Long Island this summer. Probably as a study in slow motion.

Edwards, of Smith Theft Plot, Freed

Official of Defunct Bond House Vanishes After Leaving Lorton.

John H. Edwards, jr., who was convicted in December, 1930, of conspiring with others to destroy records and embezzle $5,000,000 in funds of the defunct F. H. Smith Co., of which he was vice president, has been released from Lorton Reformatory.

Sentenced to serve three years, Edwards' term expired Thursday with deduction of 225 days for good behavior. Last night he could not be located in Washington and family connections said he was "out of town on business."

G. Bryan Pitts and C. Elbert Anadale, convicted with Edwards, are still in the reformatory. Pitts was given a 14-year sentence and Anadale 9. Edwards began serving his sentence as soon as it was named, but the other two appealed to higher courts and when this move was lost, began serving time to be checked off against their sentences, nearly a year later.

MAN DIES OF SHOT; SECOND CASE BEING PROBED BY POLICE

Autopsy Fails to Fix Death Cause, So Viscera Is Sent to Chemist.

The death of one man was called suicide yesterday by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, and an investigation was ordered when a second man died after being found mysteriously ill at his home Saturday night.

John Helmus, 38, of 710 A street northeast, former congressional secretary and intimate friend of William Tyler Page, former Clerk of the House, yesterday barricaded himself in his room and shot himself through the head with a revolver.

Mrs. Alice Ellis, his landlady, heard the shot and ran upstairs but could not open the door. Finally, with the help of several tenants, the door was broken open and Helmus' body found.

Two notes were left, one to Dr. Samuel Watkins, of 1448 Harvard street northwest, in which a key to Helmus' safe deposit box at a bank was inclosed, and another to Mrs. Ellis in which the man apologized for his act. A dollar bill in the second note was to pay for a breakfast Helmus had eaten several days ago.

Victim of Deafness.

Helmus was a former secretary to Representative George Edmunds, of Massachusetts, and also to the latter's successor, Charles L. Underhill. He retired about two years ago because of deafness incurred as a result of an attack of scarlet fever.

Dr. Watkins said last night that recently, his patient had been complaining of a loud buzzing in his ears which grew steadily worse. This is believed to have led to his ending his life.

Clarence S. Cates, 50, of 1335 Columbia road northwest, former Census Bureau clerk, who was taken to Garfield Hospital Saturday night in an unconscious condition by his wife Catherine, died yesterday morning, allegedly from the effects of a dose of poison.

Autopsy Performed.

An autopsy performed yesterday by Dr. MacDonald did not definitely fix the exact cause of death. Contents of the man's stomach were sent to the District chemist for analysis, and not until a report is returned by the latter will it be certain whether or not the man died of poison, though his symptoms are said to have pointed to that theory.

Dr. MacDonald said yesterday that the man had been out of work for some time and had been despondent for the last few days.

Members of the homicide squad, who began an investigation when informed of his death, found by the bedside an envelope which had evidently contained a white powder. Two letters were found in Mr. Cates' trunk. One letter contained $200 and expressed the wish his body be cremated. The other stated his insurance was paid up.

Robbers Discard Some of Car Loot

$375 Rings and Clothing Lost, but Securities Are Recovered.

Thieves who early yesterday looted two parked automobiles of clothing and valuables totaling in value nearly $1,000, discarded the most prized portion of their haul and escaped with only two rings and wearing apparel valued at $375.

A short time after Mrs. Gertrude Camp, of 1413 K street northwest, reported the loss of clothing, rings and valuable stock certificates from her car parked near her home, police recovered most of the loot abandoned in another parked machine. The loss was first estimated at $610. All was recovered but an overcoat and two diamond rings valued at $175.

The car of William Peckels, of Pittsburgh, Pa., also was robbed and police were told that clothing valued at $200 was missing.

Husband Prevents Success of Suicide

Woman Victim of Sinus Shot in Arm as Mate Tries to Take Gun.

Brooding over continued ill health, Mrs. Cecelia Martin, 28, wounded herself in the left arm yesterday with a .25-caliber revolver as her husband tussled with her in an effort to dissuade her from a suicide attempt, police said.

Thomas Martin, the husband, said his wife had suffered from sinus trouble for a long period and that constant pain had made her despondent. Mrs. Martin made the suicide attempt yesterday in their rooms at 308 E street northwest.

An Emergency Hospital interne rendered first aid to Mrs. Martin and she was later sent to Gallinger Hospital for observation. Martin received a deep cut on his leg when he stumbled against a sharp object while trying to prevent his wife from shooting herself.

Girl, 16, Is Missing.

Police yesterday were requested to look for Elsie Coleman, 16, of 1705 Kilbourne place northwest, who, according to her mother, left home Friday night and has not been seen since. She was in the company of a young man en route to Baltimore, her mother said.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT was a matter of almost unanimous critical comment upon the opening of "Looking Forward," at Loew's Fox on Friday, that Lionel Barrymore, in the character of Benton, brought Kringelein of "Grand Hotel" back to life.

Lionel Barrymore.

This, it seems to me, is not to be construed in any sense as a complaint. Nor yet as an aspersion. There was not much else that Mr. Barrymore could do in the premises.

The Mr. Benton of "Looking Forward" IS Herr Kringelein of "Grand Hotel," transplanted from Berlin to London. Their occupations are the same, their complacent surrender to circumstances the same; barring the matter of ill health, their reactions to a touch of life are the same. Naturally, confronted by a task identical with one he has already so successfully performed, the eldest of the Barrymores would employ the same methods, the same intonations and even the same roached hair—the way the old-time barber would have curled it around his finger, if you had let him—to duplicate in the British capital a figure he had created with such consummate artistry in the German.

Why not?

Incidentally, the pace Lionel Barrymore is setting in doubling on two local screens is being closely followed by others. Just as he is to be seen in both "Looking Forward," at Loew's Fox, and "Sweepings," at RKO-Keith's, so is Lewis S. Stone appearing advantageously in both "Looking Forward," with Mr. Barrymore—from whom he practically steals the picture—and in "The White Sister," with Helen Hayes and Clark Gable, at the Palace, while Doris Lloyd, no doubt making up for a long absence, is importantly cast in both "Looking Forward" and "Oliver Twist," in which she is Nancy Sykes to William (stage) Boyd's Bill, Irving Pichel's Fagin and little Dickie Moore's Oliver, at the Metropolitan.

Speaking of long absences, Washington, of late, has heard a great deal more of Ian Keith than it has seen. Save for his single appearance as Tigellinus in Mr. De Mille's screen production of "The Sign of the Cross," this excellent actor with the John Barrymore profile—an allusion he probably thoroughly resents—has not been seen locally for months on end, although he was persistently rumored as one of Miss Tallulah Bankhead's potential assets in "Forsaking All Others." He even forsook her. It is deemed reasonably certain, however, that he will appear as a featured member of the cast of Mr. Shubert's production of Edouard Bourdet's "Best Sellers," costarring Peggy Wood and Ernest Truex, when that amusing commentary upon the publishing "racket" is accorded its American premiere in the National Theater tonight. So you ought to know something about Mr. Keith.

It was only recently that Ian Keith returned from the West Coast, where he both appeared in pictures and became virtually the "first actor" of the Coast theater by reason of playing out there in a series of Broadway hits. Far Western audiences made their acquaintance with "Peter Ibbetson," "The Command to Love," "He Who Gets Slapped," "The Firebrand," "Elizabeth and Essex" and "Grand Hotel" through Mr. Keith's activities in their stellar roles. Last season he put on his own production of "Hamlet," with a cast that included Irving Pichel—the Fagin of "Oliver Twist," at the Met—Mary Young, John Craig and Montagu Love, seen at the Belasco as an important member of the group of artists presenting Daniel Frohman's Inaugural Actors' Fund Benefit the night of March 5, if you remember—and even if you don't.

When Keith left Broadway he was featured by Herman Shumlin in "The Command Performance" and seemed on the way to doing a James K. Hackett as a matinee star de luxe. He first came to New York's attention, by the way, in Belasco's production of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," with Lionel Barrymore.

Although Mr. Keith is often referred to as an English actor, he is definitely American—Boston born—and is the direct descendant of George Ross, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He recently married the Baroness Fern von Andra, formerly leading woman in Max Reinhardt's Berlin company and later star of several important German plays and films.

So now you know.

This week those who have so long yearned for an opportunity to get abreast of Russian film production will have their first chance on Thursday and Friday nights, at 11:30 o'clock, when the Washington Film Guild, by arrangement with Sidney Lust, will present "Golden Mountains" as the first of a series of Russian pictures to be presented in the Hippodrome Theater, opposite the Public Library at Ninth street and New York avenue.

Although "Golden Mountains" is a Russian talking picture presenting its dialogue wholly in the Muscovite tongue, it is made comprehensible to American audiences by stenciled subtitles in English, exactly as was done in "Maedchen in Uniform." The story revolves around the peasants who become factory workers at the Putilov in Leningrad. It was written by the Workers Correspondents of that great tractor factory and is being released in this country by Amkino.

For the first time in many years, the Lambs Club, New York's famous actors' organization, will send its annual "Gambol," to be given in the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, on Sunday night, April 23, on a tour of the country's "principal cities," including Washington.

The 1933 "Lambs' Gambol" will be presented for one performance in the National Theater on Sunday night, April 30, with Mr. William Harryman Rapley, owner of the theater, host to the traveling Thespian-clubmen. This year's offering is sponsored by Joseph Santley, pleasantly remembered as one of musical comedy's foremost juveniles and both matrimonial and professional partner of charming Ivy Sawyer. The group of artists he will bring to the National will be made known at a later date.

Then, too, you might care to know that: The Warner neighborhood houses in which matinees are not usually presented are stepping out for Easter Week, the Savoy and Avalon with daily matinees, the York and Apollo with mats today and the Colony today and tomorrow . . . John Sikken and Theodore Tenley, two students of the Clifford Brooke Academy who elicited praise in the school's recent performances, will have parts in "Riddle Me This," opening bill of the National Theater Players . . . If the Weather Bureau can arrange to shut off the water in time, the Loew's Theaters Cadet Band, 100 strong, led by Capt. J. B. McKenzie, will play for the Easter egg rolling at the White House this morning . . . Songs sweeter than sweet by Elsa Lang, operatic soprano; breakneck dancing by Ted Meza, dainty stepping by tiny Frances Nova, and tenor canarying by Eddy Gale are on tap in the new floor show beginning today at the Madrillon . . . Season reservations for the National Theater Players, insuring the same seats each week, still can be made upon application to the boxoffice . . . From prima donna with a Chester Hale unit to radio star within a week is the achievement of Aileen Clark, charming soprano with Isham Jones' Orchestra at Loew's Fox this week . . . One of the best bands to hit town in a month of Sundays, by the way . . . Dedicated to music rather than noise, if you get the idea . . . And that medley of his own hits played by Isham Jones at the piano is the hit of his hit act . . . Ask anybody . . . It was only two weeks ago that you were wondering if you would like beer . . . FATHER STROHAVER, ON CATHOLIC HOUR, URGES CHRIST LOVE

Declares Resurrection of Jesus Is Foundation Stone of Faith.

The Rev. George F. Strohaver, of Georgetown University, guest preacher on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour's Easter service, broadcast yesterday afternoon from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest, spoke on the "Love Lesson of the Resurrection."

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney presided at the services which included the blessing of the sick and the solemn Lourdes procession. The Rev. S. A. Czyz, the Rev. J. Kelly Reese and the Friars of the Atonement assisted.

A special Easter selection of music, under direction of Mr. Harry Wheaton Howard, was given by Miss Florence Yocum, soprano; James F. Nolan, barytone; Miss Ann Arian, violinist, and the Boys' Sanctuary Choir.

Corner Stone of Hope.

Father Strohaver said in part:

"The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the foundation stone of our faith; it is the corner stone of our hope; it is the hearth stone of our love; for the resurrection not only solidifies our faith in Christ, not only strengthens our hope in Christ, but it also teaches us how to love Christ. Christ did not praise the wild daughter of guilt, Magdalene, for the heroism of her humiliation but for the trustfulness of her return; Christ did not pardon this woman for the austerity of her sacrifice but for the tenderness of her sorrow; Christ does not share the glory of His resurrection with Magdalene who had fallen through love because she now loves no more but because she now loves so much.

Let Affections Pour.

"The natural outpourings of the human heart are not to be despised on account of their beauty nor is their usefulness to be overlooked even by saints. Keep your affections within their proper banks but let them flow. Science that would make all things only beautiful would blot from the universe its truest charm. The religion that admits no heart is as senseless and as inhuman as materialism that admits no soul.

"Do we think that because of our Lenten resolutions of amendment we can now uproot and cast out our natural passions and affections? My friends, it can not be done!

"Do not fear the cross. Without it you can not love Christ. With it you can conquer and control all other loves and affections. Without Christ the cross is hard, dead crushing wood. With Christ the cross is strong as God, sweet as love, tender as a tear."

Tuberculosis Fund Cut Is Protested in Letter

A protest against the cut in the appropriation for tuberculosis care in Washington was voiced yesterday by the board of directors of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society in a letter to Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"It seems a questionable form of economy to reduce the budget for this type of care since the ultimate cost to the community both in the loss of life and in new cases brought about by infection will be infinitely higher than the immediate saving accomplished," the letter said.

Young Street Singer Finds His Crooning Remunerative

Coins Rattle Down From Office Windows Upon Support of Five.

A young street singer, as yet unengaged by radio, has made his appearance in Washington and Saturday he serenaded the employes of the District Building and the Department of Justice annex at Thirteen-and-a-half and E streets.

Only 11 years old, Phillip Arnold, of 1115 K street northwest, is at present the sole support of a family of five, his father and three brothers being without employment. Yet street singing is not a new vocation for him, he said. He has been at it off and on for five years.

Possessing a strong and appealing voice, young Arnold can be heard clearly several stories above the street where he stands crooning recent popular songs. His handsome bearing and flashing eyes draw many coins that his singing might not. Asked if he had ever studied voice culture, he said:

"No; I just picked it up, partly from the radio; but it's out of order now."

Business, as in other callings, varies. Within the last fortnight, since he has been singing in Washington Phillip has netted as much as $7 a day. His family only recently returned to the National Capital from Alderson, W. Va.

POLICEMAN SLAYS ATTACKER IN HOME

Beaten Over Head With Own Baton While Trying to Make Arrest.

Richard Robinson, colored, 23, of 30 G street southwest, was shot and killed yesterday morning by George M. Struder, Fourth Precinct policeman, when he assaulted the policeman, who was attempting to make an arrest at 1510 Massachusetts avenue southeast.

According to Struder's report, he was walking his beat in front of the Massachusetts avenue address when Rebella Taylor, colored, ran out of the house and said a man was threatening her with a gun. The policeman entered and found Garfield Selvy, colored, brandishing a revolver.

Struder said he took the gun away from Selvy and as he did so, Robinson grabbed his baton and struck him over the head several times. He said he then fired three shots at his assailant, who ran up the steps to the second floor, jumped out of a window, hired a cab, and went to Casualty Hospital, where he died shortly afterward.

The policeman was removed to the same hospital in a passing auto and treated for bruises about his head and shoulders. His condition is undetermined.

Selvy was later arrested and jailed at Fourth precinct station.

D. C. FOREST GROUP MOVES CAMP TODAY

200 Woods Recruits Off to Luray in Charge of Capt. Donovan.

The shrill notes of an Army bugle were scheduled to tumble 200 sleepy Washingtonians from their bunks at Fort Washington early today and start them on their way to the first of the reforestation camps.

Regardless of weather conditions, the men will leave Fort Washington at 7 a. m. in buses for Luray, Va., where they will go into action at Passage Creek, nearby.

Capt. Leo Donovan, Twelfth Infantry, will be in charge of the convoy and camp. He will be assisted by Second Lieuts. Richard B. Carhart and William F. Train. A small detail of enlisted men from the Infantry will assist in establishing the camp.

The Conservation Corps will carry regular field equipment and tents will be taken along for sleeping quarters. They will carry a ten-day supply of staple rations.

INTERFEDERATION CONFERENCE WILL DETERMINE STATUS

Proposed By-Law Designed to Avert Stand on Taxi Fare Controversy.

The Interfederation Conference, which has been seriously threatened with disruption by withdrawal of the Federation of Citizens Associations, will continue to function if it adopts a change in by-laws agreed upon last week by a special committee appointed at the last monthly meeting.

This change will be submitted tomorrow night at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building by the committee composed of James G. Yaden, president of the District Federation; Stephen James, of the Montgomery County Federation and chairman of the conference, and Robert E. Plymale, of the Arlington County Federation.

Appointed to consider a change in by-laws proposed by the District Federation, headed by Mr. Yaden, the special committee reached agreement on a modified proposal which retains the essence of the Yaden recommendation. If adopted, it will prevent the conference from taking a stand on the taxicab issue contrary to that held by the District Federation, which is stanch defender of the existing zone system.

At the last two previous sessions a heated controversy raged, chiefly between the District delegates and Col. A. B. Barber, of the Montgomery group and a leader in the joint transportation committee which has sought to revoke the congressional ban on the meter regulation promulgated more than a year ago by the Public Utilities Commission. At one session three District delegates walked out of the meeting in a huff.

The special committee's proposal states that no action of the conference shall "be effective" until and unless the member bodies shall have concurred. It also provides that, when a member body has not voted on an issue pending before the conference, the matter shall be deferred for a month upon request of a majority of the delegates present from any federation.

Rescue Squad Removes Wire From Child's Nose

The fire rescue squad last night extracted a long wire from the nostrils of 2½-year-old Mary L. Boarman, 4330 Third street northwest.

The child was playing with a toy bank, and, in breaking it, lodged the wire in her nose. The squad brought a long pair of tweezers into play for the rescue.
